MARCHERS FURNISH $21,000 IN BONDS

23 Paraders Are Remanded: Face Illegal Assembly

Men Who Led Riotous Crowd Believed Suffering Pangs of Hunger Find Little Trouble in Furnishing Heavy Security For Their Freedom

Twenty three "Hunger Marchers" were remanded on total bonds of $23,000 for Supreme Court trial on charges of being members of an unlawful assembly by Magistrate Col. P. C. H. Primrose late Friday afternoon after evidence had been adduced by Prosecutor Charles Becker that the program of the Communist party, outlined in a secret "Red Bible," calls for world revolution and bloodshed.

Each of the 23 accused were identified by a series of police witnesses as active and militant members of the Communist party.

By 10 p.m. Friday, 21 of the 23 "hunger marchers" had found the $1,000 bond each and had gained their freedom. The $21,000 bonds passed the close scrutiny of Magistrate Col. George B. McLeod and conjecture is rife as to the source of the bonds by which the self-styled "hunger marchers" gained freedom from custody, until the January sitting of the Supreme court.

WHERE FUNDS KEPT

It is believed, however, that the Canadian Labor Defence league had a hand in proceedings as Constable A. H. Keeler testified during the preliminary hearing that the Defence league is a wing of the Communist party formed to protect "class war prisoners."

The startling disclosures of the Communist program was outlined to the court by Constable Albert Harold Keeler, R.C.M.P., late of Britain's famous Scotland Yard, who was a trusted member of the inner circle of the "Red" party, mingled with its leaders, learned its secrets and studied its structure during his adventurous masquerade to gather evidence.

On October 21, 1930, Keeler dropped his outward identity of a police officer and entered the rank and file of the "Red" party. As a

NATION PAYS LAST RITES AT COOLIDGE BIER

Former President's Funeral Attended by Sorrowing Admirers

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 7.—The nation he served paid its last honors today to Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth president of the United States. Friends and neighbors, the leaders in public life where he once walked, the high and the lowly, joined to pay their final respects in a brief and simple funeral service, such as he would have wished.

President Hoover who took up the burden Colvin Coolidge laid down in Washington not quite four years ago, the vice-president, the chief justice of the United States, others in the national government and the chief executives of states of his native New England were there.

In the congregation that filled the few hundred seats of the Jonathan Edwards Congregational church, were also Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and James Roosevelt, the wife and the son of the man who, in a few weeks will take the office Calvin Coolidge once held as President.

HOOVER IS PRESENT

President Hoover sat with head bowed down through the solemn procession of the service. Next to him was Mrs. Hoover, her eyes on the preacher, then Mrs. John Coolidge, and Mrs. Coolidge and her son, John, all closely following the minister. No others sat in that front row.

A quartette sang the familiar strains of "Lead, Kindly Light." The minister read from the scriptures, then prayed. The quartette sang, "O Love That Wil Not Let Me Go."

PREMIER OF N. S. SERIOUSLY ILL

HALIFAX, Jan. 7.—Premier Gordon S. Harrington of Nova Scotia was rushed to Victoria General hospital here today on arrival of a special train from Truro. Hospital authorities would give out no information as to the nature of his illness.

The Premier was suddenly seized while returning from Sydney, and left the Sydney-Halifax express at Truro. A special was made up there and at Halifax the Premier was met by his physician, Dr. H. K. MacDonald.

It was reported Premier Harrington was suffering from appendicitis and that an operation would be necessary at once, there was no confirmation.

Process Server Is Cute Girl: Hutton Is Given Summons

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7—Margaret Parker, petite, brunette and 21, tells today of David Hutton's desire to give singing lessons.

Margaret has a job. It sometimes involves difficult assignments, but she says smiles usually win and they did in this case.

Sunday night she went to Aimee's Temple. She could not get a seat, so she stood in apparent distress in the aisle and then smiled at Hutton, on the platform, she tells.

He motioned to an usher to find her a front seat. Seated, she smiled, she says, and he smiled. After the services he asked to show her through the Temple and she asserted.

"I'll bet you can sing," said David with a smile. "Why don't you let me give you lessons?"

"Well, I don't know about that, but I'd like to give you something—this," she replied.

Discover Fiance Staggering About Unable To Explain

Second of Unsolved Attacks Made on Women in Public Park — Two Men Believed Involved in Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7—Her throat cut and head badly battered, Rose McCloskey, 19-year-old unemployed salesgirl, was found dead today under a tree in Fairmount Park.

The girl met death after starting out for a walk with Dennis Boyle, 30, said by friends to be her fiance, who was found later staggering about a West Philadelphia street and unable to tell what happened. He lost consciousness in a hospital before making a statement.

A cursory examination of the girl's body showed she had been assailed by at least two men, battered about the head with rocks and apparently killed with knife thrusts on the throat.

Police believe that after leaving friends last night, Miss McCloskey and Boyle went to the park and sat on a bench behind a pile of gravel about 15 feet high. From footprints, detectives found that at least two persons were on top of the gravel mound, waiting until Boyle and the girl had their backs turned.

Detectives said there had been several unsolved attacks on women in Fairmount Park recently, but were unable to link the crimes definitely, they declared.

A case which possibly may have a close connection with Miss McCloskey's murder is that of Helen Loftus, 22, and her fiance, Morris Scott, who were drowned last August under mysterious circumstances while canoeing in the Schuylkill river which runs through Fairmount park.

Bootleggers Give New Yorkers Fresh Supply Of Fish

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Bootleggers provided 4,000 pounds of fresh fish for the destitute of Brooklyn today, but it wasn't their fault.

They used the fish to conceal $200,000 worth of whiskey in the holds of two schooners captured yesterday. The authorities gave it away.

Believe Coolidge Died Without Will

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—Possibility that Calvin Coolidge died without making a will was disclosed tonight by business associates of the former president of the United States.

Ralph H. Hemenway, Northampton lawyer and former partner of Mr. Coolidge, said no will had been drawn so far as he knew and that he did not believe members of Mr. Coolidge's family knew of the existence of any such document.

SINO-JAPANESE GENERAL WAR NOW IMMINENT

Estimated 6,000 Nipponese Troops Concentrated at Shanhaikwan

SHANGHAI, China, Jan. 7.—Spread of an unofficial war between Japan and China in northern China was regarded in foreign circles today as an imminent possibility.

It was estimated that at least 6,000 Japanese troops now were concentrated at Shanhaikwan, China's northern railway terminal which the Japanese captured early this week and Chinese were reported rushing reinforcements to Chinwangtao, the port of the Yellow sea, 10 miles westward.

Telegrams were pouring in on the Nationalist government at Nanking from various war lords throughout China asking for orders to march against the Japanese. Chinese leaders here declared they were determined to defend the province of Jehol against the anticipated Japanese drive to bring that territory within the Manchukuo boundary. It has become impossible to restrain the Chinese people further, they said, "in the face of the increasing provocation of the Japanese."

One Man Royal Board Will Hear Jurist Case

Judge Stubbs To Face Court Probe As To His Conduct

One of the biggest news stories ever published in Canada will break in Winnipeg next Wednesday, when Judge L. St. George Stubbs, senior county court judge of the province of Manitoba, is summoned before Mr. Justice Frank Ford of the Supreme Court of Alberta, sitting as a one-man Royal Commission to defend himself against complaints and charges made by Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general of the province of Manitoba.

The attorney-general has complained to the Minister of Justice that Judge Stubbs, by his utterances and conduct on the bench, has "tended to create contempt for the courts of justice in Manitoba, and brought into disrepute administration of the criminal law."

The situation is almost without precedent in the legal annals of Canada. Judge Stubbs has defended his actions in the public press and on the platform. His contention is that "big money" and "political pull" are endeavoring to usurp the rights of his court. He takes the stand that a judge cannot be interfered with if justice is not to be polluted at the fountain head. All over the dominion of Canada he is receiving support.

Trades unions and other public and semi-public bodies have gone on record as supporting him. Petitions have been sent to Ottawa demanding that "persecution under the guise of prosecution" must cease.

On the other hand many eminent bodies and personages are supporting the stand taken by Attorney-General Major.

Eminent counsel will be engaged on both sides. The attorney-general of Manitoba is being represented by some of the keenest legal minds in Canada. Judge Stubbs will have a former solicitor-general in the Mackenzie King government leading the counsel he will use in his defence.

Mr. Justice Ford leaves Edmonton today for Winnipeg where the hearing is to be held. In Canada, all over the British Empire, and in the great republic to the south the case is being followed with the keenest interest. It will be the "big story" of the day when it breaks next week.

For this reason The Bulletin today prints a full length story of the action and what led up to it. Read it. You will want to know when you see it appearing daily in the news columns of every paper in Canada why Judge

Welsh Statesman Avers Communists Are Lying In Wait

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE
Former Prime Minister of Britain.
By Special Cable

LONDON, Jan. 7.—1932 has been an abject failure. It has not settled any of its problems. It has only muddled them up. 1932 has badly muddled an already bad muddle.

Disarmaments, tariffs, exchanges, debts, China—they are all in a more helpless state of confusion than they were in at the beginning of this disagreeable year.

"It Is Simply Terrible"

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

It has not taken its trouble lying down. In its frantic efforts to put things right it has been in a constant whirl of elections, conferences, and committees of experts and inexperts. Each election and conference has in turn always been a triumph, for somebody. Each time the nations have gone to the polling booths or conference rooms waving their rags in joy over the result. 1932 has been a mad year.

What about 1933? Will it be any better? I can see no signs of real improvement. There are changes in the governments of important countries and they may mean much or little. The old skippers seemed to have exhausted all their ideas and they reached the babbling stage of exhaustion.

There are perhaps three exceptions. New men may achieve something.

Who are they?

Paul-Boncour follows Herriot, von Schleicher follows von Papen, and Roosevelt follows Hoover. I have not met either of the latter so I cannot assess their possibilities.

Had Paul-Boncour been Clemenceau—had Gen. von Schleicher been Bismarck—had Franklin Roosevelt been Theodore Roosevelt, I should feel confident that everything which resource, vision and high courage could accomplish would not only be attempted but achieved.

Ramsay Macdonald would have presented no insuperable obstacle to such men. They would have managed him by putting him in the chair when decisions they had arrived at were being recorded.

One or more of the new rulers may have qualities comparable to these departed statesmen. It is unfair to prejudge them. If they have, then 1933 will not only be a new year but a new era.

PROBLEMS TO SOLVE

The difficulties with which they are to be confronted are problems of statesmanship, financiers, bankers, traders and industrialists have all done their best and now they sit in their offices in paralytic impotence waiting for something to happen. They have been waiting for some time in gloom expectancy for the politicians.

What can they do. If they can do nothing, then the communists are also waiting and watching around the corner.

1932 has at least rendered some service to depressed mankind. It will be memorable in history as the year when the problems confronting the post-war world grew large and definite enough to be clearly understood. We have not yet solved them, but at least we can begin now to discern them and ascertain their movements in the mist and chaos.

Throughout the world the past year has seen a steady growth in the number of unemployed. Workers out of work in the industrial countries are now estimated to total more than 30,000,000. That figure is more than the combined population of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, and Belgium. It is nearly twice the estimated total of Jews in the whole world.

It has reached the dimensions of a great nation.

To remedy this state of things statesmanship must first take all necessary action to restore international trade. It has been steadily contracting during the past two years. The exports of every country have fallen heavily and there is no sign of their recovery. In the last couple of years world trade has declined at least 50 per cent.

TRADE RESTRICTIONS

Trade restrictions have brought exchanges almost to a standstill. Traders assure me they have no difficulty in selling their goods abroad provided they took payment in the currencies of the countries to which the merchandise is consigned. But you cannot pay your workmen in drachmas, pesos, or milreis.

The old system by which the world bought and paid for its produce is no longer working. Old bills of exchange meant in substance an interchange of goods. As goods is no longer freely interchanged that system has been shattered beyond repair.

I have heard of British companies operating in foreign countries and making good profits, but unable to transmit a sufficient proportion of those profits to London to enable headquarters to pay office expense—let alone dividends.

There is a curious reversal of conditions from the days before the war. Then commercial and economic relations between the different countries of the world were active and growing rapidly. Economically, the world was in a fair way to realizing its close unity and interdependence.

But such a wide vision was still alien to the majority of politicians and diplomats who were encased in the tradition of sovereign isolation and the potential hostility of their countries to each other.

The trader was, however, wiser and wilier than his rulers and he was finding ways to circumnavigate the reefs and barriers which had been built up everywhere to keep out his merchandise.

Today the opposite seems to be the case. The world war taught its statesmen the first elements of cooperation and since then we have witnessed a far greater tendency on the political and diplomatic side for nations to work together.

We now have international conferences at short intervals to settle problems in common council. The past year has witnessed a number of these dealing with such matters as disarmament, international debts,

GLENN FRANK, learned president of the University of Wisconsin, tells Governor Roosevelt that "three major perplexities" will confront him on March 4, namely:

Brisbane

"The thinly-veiled breakdown of the world's financial system, the revolutionary changes that science and technology have effected in the world's industrial system, and the strange revival since the war of a stubborn and swashbuckling nationalism."

There is another major perplexity," more "major" than the three mentioned, namely, the problem of putting 12,000,000 unemployed back to work, that is the real perplexity.

British Columbia Government Cost Slashed $400,000 Yearly by Minister

Cabinet Ministers And Civic Servants Included In Slash

Saving of $750,000 Also Claimed in Retrenchment Policy

VICTORIA, Jan. 7.—Cost of government in British Columbia was slashed by nearly $400,000 a year by Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, yesterday. Cabinet ministers and all civil servants are included in further aslary cuts ranging from three to five per cent on top of reductions made on April 1 last of from three to twelve per cent.

Members of the cabinet and a few officials receiving more than $3,600 a year will have their salaries reduced by five per cent, making the total reduction in this class 17 per cent.

On salaries ranging between $4,300 and $5,600, the reduction will be three per cent, bringing the total cut to 15 per cent.

On salaries between $3,075 and $4,300 there will also be a reduction of three per cent, making the total cut to date 12 per cent.

Another three per cent will be cut from salaries ranging from $1,850 to $3,075, bringing the total reductions to 10 per cent.

In the case of salaries which run from $1,540 to $1,850, the employees will have to take an additional three per cent cut, which will bring their total reductions to date to eight per cent.

There will be no reductions for civil servants who are receiving less than $1,540.

Mr. Jones explained that a saving of approximately $750,000 had been made in retrenchment policies during the last six months, every department being affected, and the new salary reduction would mean a saving of $50,000, bringing the total salary slash to close to $400,000 since last April.

ing of the Sainte Chapelle. Many millions in New York have never seen the inside of the Natural History Museum. If that magnificent institution were appreciated as it should be, police would be needed at every hour to regulate the crowds.

Heads of great industrial organizations might spend pensive hours in the dinosaur room. Dr. William Floyd Smith, who has hunted strange animals in strange places, gazing on the giant Brontosaurus dinosaur, remarked:

"Animals grow too big, and then they die. They don't grow small again. This beast, and others like him, died out because they could not get enough to eat, enough to supply their gigantic sizes."

The Brontosaurus needed gigantic quantities of plant food. Big financial and industrial concerns need quantities of orders and dividend food.

You might spend a thousand thoughtful, concentrated hours in that museum, and at the end of each hour you would have increased your knowledge and real education.

CALVIN COOLIDGE is dead in the prime of life. Every American deeply regrets his loss and sympathizes sincerely, with his widow and son.

They will find comfort in the record that Mr. Coolidge leaves behind him, a record of public service that has put every American in his debt.

JOHN MASEFIELD, Poet Laureate of England, is in the U.S. with Mrs. Masefield, a pleasant, serious couple.

Mr. Masefield tell you not to expect "cheery music" from poets "in these blue days."

A poet can only "bring news of paradise and give us a bit of magic and beauty." That is a good deal.

Thirty-seven years ago Mr. Mosefield worked for a saloonkeeper in New York and was a poet then, although he didn't know it.

He has been a seaman, and that hard life could not drive poetry out of him. You would like his poetry. His sea life is reflected in such lines as these:

"I must go down to the seas again,
To the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way,
Where the wind's like a whetted knife.
And all I ask is a merry yarn
From a laughing fellow-rover,
And quiet sleep and a sweet dream
When the long trick's over."

✣ ✣ ✣

THE learned Dr. Freud, whose specialty is "babies in love with the grandmothers," writes another book about interpreting dreams on a "symbolism" basis.

There is no interpreting of dreams, despite the fact that Joseph, who was smart enough to make a living at any kind of business, made a lucky guess at Pharaoh's dream.

Dreams have no more meaning than the haphazard rush of a runaway team of horses.

And dreams do not go "by contrary." They go as they please, and mean nothing. Write that down.

ONE small railway that borrowed over a million from Uncle Sam through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, cannot pay interest due. You may expect many similar pieces of news, since the "helping out corporations with public money" has been done so lavishly.

Uncle Sam's deficit now amounts to one thousand one hundred and fifty-nine million dollars. In six months past the government has taken in one thousand and twenty-two millions and spent two thousand one hundred and eighty-two millions. That kind of "budget balancing" cannot last indefinitely.

NEW YORK'S public school children are still taught that alcohol in any shape is a curse, although New York has voted against prohibition. Perhaps it is just as well. We still keep to the story of the cherry tree and the hatchet, although there wasn't any cherry tree, or any hatchet.

But it might be as well, even in public schools, to give both sides of the story, for explaining to school children that George Washington made alcoholic drinks, drank them, and was never a drunkard.

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, imported his red wines frmo France, drank them, and wrote to the legislature of Virginia that only the free use of light wines and beer could overcome the curse of whisky.

Also, school children might be told:

"Children, sad to relate, and doubtless because of the mysterious working of Providence, among 1,000 greatest men in the history of the world there were not ten total abstainers, and those ten do not amount to much. What is more remarkable, the nations of the world that are total abstainers amount to little also."

PARADERS

trusted capitalist-hating comrade he won the respect of the local Communist leaders and gained access to party secrets and literature. Some of this literature, he testified is carefully guarded to prevent it's leaking to the outside world.

CALLS FOR STRIKES

One of these secret "Red Bibles," the "Program of the Red International," calls for "a combination of strikes and armed demonstrations and finally a general strike, co-jointly with armed revolution against the state power of the bourgeois, to be conducted according to the rules of war with a plan of campaign and offensive fighting operations."

The above was one of the marked passages referred to by the crown prosecutor.

Another marked passage in the "Program of the Red International" outlines the following plan of action for all good Communists:

"Carry on a bold struggle. Openly advance, conduct propaganda, carry out agitation for the agrarian revolution among the broad masses of the peasantry for the overthrow of the Landlords. Combat the re-actionary and medieval influences of the clergy and the missionaries and other Fascist tools."

Slowly and methodically, Prosecutor Becker built up his case around the 23 accused, and rested for the Crown only after the last man had been identified both as an alleged "Red" organizer and a member of the "Hunger March" mob which tried to parade to the legislative buildings from the market square, in defiance of the government and police ban, the afternoon of December 20.

BANKERS ON STAND

As the afternoon session of the hearing opened, the Prosecutor called banking officials to the witness stand.

F. W. McTear, official of the Edmonton branch of the Bank of Montreal told the court that he had read in the local press, days before Dec. 20, that any attempt on the part of the "Hunger Marchers" to parade would be blocked by police.

"I had learned that in spite of the numerous printed warnings both from the Chief of Police and from Premier Brownlee, that the march would be held," testified the witness, "and I expected trouble."

"What did you do about it?" questioned the Prosecutor.

"I gave orders that currency in the bank must be reduced to a minimum on December 19 and kept that way throughout the next day.'

"Why?"

"I was taking no chances. The situation appeared menacing and in addition, there were no police on duty around the bank or on Jasper avenue, December 20. I guess they were all over on the market square."

SIMILAR TESTIMONY

M. H. Smith of the Bank of Commerce branch in Edmonton gave similar testimony. Cash in this bank was kept at a minimum throuhgout the troubled period.

Superintendent W. F. W. Hancock of the R.C.M.P. regaled the court with the story of raids made on the Hunger March headquarters in the Ukrainian Church and Labor Temple, 96 street, the day following the riot.

"Certain men were arrested on warrants and brought to the city police cells," he related. "Others whom we wanted to question were brought to the station but were not put in the cells."

"These men who were not put in the cells were under arrest?" asked the court.

"They were not. They came of their own free will and volition. When requested to come along by Constable Keeler, they did so willingly."

"Were they questioned?"

NO THREATS MADE

"They made statements in the office of City Detective Inspector Sutherland."

"Were any threats made to obtain the statements."

"No."

"Any promises of favors?"

"No."

"Was any duress used?"

"None at all. The statements were made freely."

"Did you arrest these men on a warrant?"

"Some of them, yes."

"The turmoil, confusion, the crowds and noise at the Ukrainian Labor Temple made such a procedure difficult."

But one question asked by defence counsel in cross examination

"Were they warned the usual way before they made statements, those who were arrested on a warrant and came willingly?"

"No. It was not necessary. They were not under arrest."

DETECTIVES TESTIMONY

Detective Sidney Coggles, R.C.M.P. added a valuable stone in the Crown's wall of evidence when he told the court that on December 13 he had gone to the 96 street "Hunger March" headquarters along with other officers of the Mounted Police.

"At the door I met two of the now accused," stated the witness, "and I told them that under no consideration would their proposed "Hunger March" be permitted. One of the men told me that nothing could stop the march as it was the desire of the masses to hold it. I told them to have their secretary present when I called later. Returning in the afetrnoon I again warned the leaders that the march would not be tolerated and I received the same answer that the march was the will of the masses, the so-called masses."

Then commenced the work of identifying the 23 accused as members of the alleged unlawful assembly.

That ace of sleuths, Harold Keeler, the police-Communist identified nine of the men.

He had no difficulty, for he knew them from his days in the ranks of the Communist party where he mingled, unsuspected, learning their secrets, ambitions, organization, leaders and collecting evidence. He named them off without hesitation.

Jacob Tatko, officer of the R.C.M.P. and one time member of the "Red" party from which he was expelled in 1929, read to the court notes he made when he prowled the Communist party. He identified one of the accused as a member of an unlawful assembly back in 1931.

Sergeant Bernard Tomlinson, R.C.M.P., made a single identification as did John McCallum of Mundare. Detective Coggles recognized two.

WILCHINSKI IDENTIFIES

Hoping to trip the officer, W. R. Howson for the defence, asked him to pick the five from the crowd in the court.

"Show me Miller," he demanded and Wilchinski looked over the men and pointed out an individual.

"Is your name Miller," asked the court.

"Show me Wejtyshen."

This Wilchinski did and told the court frankly he could continue to identify the men.

Mr. Howson was satisfied that the officer knew his stuff.

Supt. W. F. W. Hancock identified Harry Gooding, who was arrested when he rose to speak in the Market square the day following the riot.

NOT MUCH CHANCE

"He didn't have much chance to say anything," smiled the officer.

"In fact," replied Prosecutor Becker, "he said something about not speaking for any length of time just before he was arrested."

"That is correct," countered Supt. Hancock.

When he was arrested Gooding had just ffinished telling the mob that "I haven't very long to speak."

The case for the prosecution was complete. During the morning session Police Chief A. G. Shute testified that he had given orders direct to the "hunger march" committee that no parade would be allowed.

Numerous witnesses testified that there had been a disturbance and added that it was caused by the marchers, the police using only sufficient force to curb the demonstration.

City business men stated that the riot had hurt trade and made it necessary to carry riot insurance.

By his testimony, Canstable Keeler established that the "Hunger March committee" was a Communist organization. During his masquerade as a "Red", Keeler learned that the committee was elected by the Edmonton Unemployed Workers party which in turn is an affiliation of the Communist party. The brand of Communism was placed on the Canadian Labor Defence League, the Farmers' Unity League, the Workers' Party, the Ukrainian Farmer Temple Association, the Young Workers' and the Young Pioneers, by this witness.

He testified that the "Hunger March" was the brainchild of the Red" party with it's Canadian fountainhead in the east a part of the world wide movement of Communism, fostered and fed from Russia with leaders and literature.

That's the case Your Worship," announced Prosecutor Becker.

I ask for dismissal of all accused," said Mr. Howson to the court.

Not granted," countered the court.

Well, that didn't take long," laughed defence attorney.

It did not, replied the bench.

I ask that accused be remanded.

Granted."

I ask that bail be reduced."

On the objection of Prosecutor Becker, Magistrate Primrose stepped up the bond to $1,000 for each accused.

1933 Auto Show Opens With Big Change In Body Designs

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—With greatly changed lines and numerous mechanical improvements, automobile manufacturers of the United States have placed their 1933 creations on display at the Grand Central Palace here.

The initial showing of the new models revealed accentuated stream lining to the extent of widely adopted skirted fenders, sloping radiators and hoods, rounded tops, flaring rear ends, tear-drop headlights, and other fittings.

The mechanical improvements consisted in a wide adoption of automatic choke, automatic starter, power brakes, beam-control headlights, down draft carburetion, carburetor heat control, automatic clutch, variations of the "X-type" frame construction and thermostatic shock absorbers.

Hudson's new six 5-passenger sedan.

HUDSON—New eight, and back in field with old "Super-Six." The eight is a refined edition of the 1932 model. The 126-inch wheelbase chassis has been discontinued, leaving the 119 and 132-inch models. Changes include pneumatic engine mounting in three-point suspension, and alterations of design, trim and interior apopintments. The six is on a 113-inch wheelbase, has a two-piece aluminum and iron cylinder head, and incirporates thermostatic heat control, automatic accelerator pump, anti-flood choke, intake silencer and an anti-back-fire device.

ESSEX—The Terraplane is now troduced in an eight-cylinder model as well as the six. Engine in eight is rubber mounted in a three-point suspension. Car features new cooling system, duoflow oil system, airplane type oil pump, down draft carburetion, air cleaner, backfire arrester, thermostatic shock absorbers, and all-steel body construction.

BUICK—Changed design includes new V-shape radiator grill, skirted fenders, doors on closed models that drop even with the running board, and sloping rear quarters. Mechanical improvements include draughtless ventilation in closed models, improved automatic clutch, push-button starter, roller bearing brake pedals, automatic carburetor heat control, beam-control headlights, and stronger frame construction.

GRAHAM—Further development of its rounded hood, sloping radiator and skirted fenders of 1932, with a new bumper design to accentuate lines of front. Car is produced in two new chassis, an eight and a six, on stronger frames. Engine horsepower stepped up, carburetar improved and bodies built of steel. Also has beam-control headlights.

WILLYS — Probably the most changed car at the show, with completely changed lines to the last degree of streamlining in front and fenders. Is said to give from 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gas. Has patented "floating power." Outside of design it features new oil system, insulated bodies, headlights constructed in fenders, down draft carburetor, hydraulic shock absorbers and non-glare windshield.

Another car with skirted rear.

PONTIAC—Another with skirted fenders and accentuated streamlines. Offers seven new body models and a new straight eight. Engine rubber mounted and fed by a down draft carburetor. New type of "cross-flow" cooling system is incorporated in all models, as is safety glass.

DE SOTO—Wheelbase extended and height reduced in this latest offering. Has "floating power," coincidental starter, new silent transmission, free wheeling, automatic clutch, hydraulic brakes, carburetor acelerator pump, automatic clutch at an additional cost, squeakproof springs, and beam control headlights.

CHEVROLET—Still a six, despite reports to the contrary. Built on longer whelbase, and features draughtless ventilation, safety glass, "cushion-balanced" engine mounting, free wheeling and synchromesh transmission, "starterator," increased engine power, skirted fenders in a further streamlined body, and an "octane selector" which is said to get the most results from all types of gasoline.

CHRYSLER — Change in lines slightly noticeable. Floating power, coincidental starter, double-drop frame, improved cooling system, automatic clutch, centrifuse brake drums, down draft carburetor and squeakproof springs.

HUPMOBILE—Looks like a lot of emphasis was placed on the six line this year. Cars pleasantly changed in design.

IRISH GIVEN TWO ELECTION CHOICES

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 7.—The first week of the Free State election campaign closed today and left voters with two promises—one concerning their pockets, the other their pride.

Former president William T. Cosgrave, leader of the National party, promised an end of economic warfare with Britain, an Anglo-Irish trade treaty and an attempt to secure revision of the nation's debt to the United Kingdom.

Persident Eamon De Valera, champion of Republicanism, promised adherence to the principle of not paying land annuities to Britain, abolition of the oath of allegiance to the King, and an attempt to promote national self-sufficiency.

Both promised reductions in taxation.

Honor For Monsignor Villeneuve

"An unconfirmed report reaching high religious authorities from Rome has it that His Grace Monsignor Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec, and primate of the Catholic church in Canada, will become a cardinal on February 13.

"This is associated with a report that could not be confirmed at the Archbishop's palace that his grace, who returned to Canada from Rome only a few weeks ago, will leave the city January 15 to return abroad.

"Monsignor Villeneuve would be the fourth cardinal given to the Catholic church in Canada, the first having been the late Cardinal Taschereau, with the late Cardinals Begin and Bouleau as his successors.

"In all cases the cardinals were archbishops of Quebec, which is the oldest see in Canada."

Herriot Fears British Friendship May Be In Peril

PARIS, Jan. 7.—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, in an article in Le Democrate, expressed fear today for Franco-British friendship which he said he had tried so hard to foster before his overthrow last month.

He déclared this friendship was an essential condition to peace.

Dscussing the question of the debts owed the United States, he said: "I remain convinced that in order to arrive some day at the modfication of the present contract with the United States, my method was the best, most wise and honest."

Three Hills Loses Old-time Residents

THREE HILLS, Alta., Jan. 7—About sixty members and friends attended the board of trade banquet Thursday evening in the hotel, given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Haymes, who are leaving shortly to take up residence in Halkirk, where he will be manager of the Royal Bank of Canada. J. E. McFee acted as chairman and called on the mayor, A. Sheline, Mr. A. J. Robertson and Mr. A. E. Patton for a few remarks. Mrs. McFee presented Mrs. Haymes with a piece of silverware, and Mr. MacFee presented Mr. Haymes with a fountain pen. In his usual manner Mr. Haymes thanked the members for their kindness to himself and his wife. Miss Helen Colburn and Charlie Chatten gave a few numbers on the piano and violin. Mr. and Mrs. Haymes have made many friends in the ten years they have lived in Three Hills.

Preference Wiped Out By Exchange

VICTORIA, Jan. 7—Officials at the parliament buildings here today confirmed the contention of Premier C. D. Richards of New Brunswick to the effect that the ten-per-cent. preference on Canadian lumber granted by Great Britain, is virtually wiped out by the difference in exchange rates.

It was stated that while the pound sterling was worth eighteen shillings in Canada and twenty-four shillings in Finland there was little hope of Canadian lumber gaining a foothold in the United Kingdom.

It was added, however, that the ten-peer-cent preference was based on the delivered price of Canadian lumber in Great Britain which, through freight charges, brought the preference up to approximately twenty per cent, but even this percentage was not enough to allow competition with Scandinavian countries.

Last Rites Held For Irma Pioneer

IRMA, Jan. 7.—The funeral of W. H. King, old timer of this district, was held from the Irma United Church with the Rev. J. R. Geeson officiating. A resident of this community for the past 25 years, Mr. King died suddenly at the year end, stricken with acute dilation of the heart. Born at Canfield, Ontario, 1863, he came west and settled in the Irma district in 1907.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Cecil and Lancelot; two sisters, Miss Clara King of Edmonton and Mrs. Mary Vollick of Canfield, Ont.; two brothers, Thomas King and Charles King of Edmonton and 12 grandchildren all of whom reside in the Irma district.

Test Team Holds Bowling Practice

BENDIGO, Victoria, Australia, Jan. 7.—In a cricket match against a Victorian county team here today the visiting English test team held a "bowling practice."

The Victorian team was finally dismissed for 215 runs, including Hatten's 48, but not until after the English bowling had proved most disappointing. Lacking guile, venom and length, the English trundlers were only exhibiting mediocre skill and it was not until Harold Larwood was brought in to the bowl as 12th man that the wickets began to fall.

The elimination contests which will finally decide the personnel of Ontario's team to compete in the Junior Grain Judging contests at the World's Grain Show to be held at Regina in 1933 are progressing.

SOVIET LUMBER SOUNDS KNELL TO DOMINION

Intra-Empire Trade Threatened, Says Timber Merchant

LONDON, Jan. 7—The Times today published a letter from Denny Mott Dickson, chairman of timber merchants, which said the recently signed contract between Russian interests and Timber Distributors, Ltd., for 800,000,000 feet of Russian lumber would "sound the death knell" of intra-Empire trade in soft woods if it were allowed to operate.

In his letter Mr. Dickson wrote he hoped the government realized the contract was not a matter concerning the timber trade alone but was of vital public interest.

The letter urged the government to make an early announcement regarding its attitude on the legality of the contract.

The Times published also the text of a circular issued to buying firms in the United Kingdom by Timber Distributors outlining some "hitherto undisclosed terms" regarding the contract with the Soviet exporters.

The circular said it is proposed to issue stock notes and complete a schedule of price about the middle of the month. It said also there is a fall and rise clause in the agreement, that the company will receive 10 shillings (about $2.50 at par) per standard (about 24,000 board feet) as an underwriting fee, and that, in order to induce purchases by shareholders the directors have decided to set aside one-half the balance of the underwriting commission, after payment of expenses, for distribution as shareholders' dividends.

As additional evidence that the wheat belt is crawling gradually farther north the wheat growers of Paddockwood, a district north of Prince Albert, Sask., will enter samples at the World's Grain show to be held at Regina in 1933.

JUDGE STUBBS AND HIS RECORD

By Frank H. Williams

Stubbs is on trial; what led up to his utterances and what was the result of them.

This is no ordinary story. It is quite likely to be the biggest news story of 1933. It will be quoted for years to come. The case is "packed with dynamite." Read this story in The Bulletin today so that you will be able to follow it when it makes the press wires next week. Here it is:

A mild-mannered, soft spofken little man, 54 years old, who came up from the obscurity of a country law practice to become a county court judge in Winnipeg, will appear before a brother jurist next week to determine whether he shall be permitted to continue as a dispenser of justice in one of His Majesty's courts.

The man is Lewis St. George Stubbs, senior county judge in the eastern judicial district of Manitoba, against whom complaints have been made that he uttered statements while on the bench "tending to create contempt for the courts of justice of this province and bringing into disrupte administration of the criminal law."

The complaints have been made by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General of Manitoba. They will be heard by a one-man royal commission consisting of Mr. Justice Frank Ford of the trial division of the Alberta Supreme Court. The hearing will begin in the court house at Winnipeg next Wednesday, January 11.

Five complaints in all have been made against Judge Stubbs. The first has to do with his conduct during the progress of the Macdonald will case and after the appeal court had given its decision. The other four concern remarks made by him from the bench during the progress of criminal trials in his court within the last few months.

CLAIMS ULTRA VIRES

Judge Stubbs will take the position, he says, that the commission is ultra vires with respect to the Macdonald will case. He contends a federal commission has no power to hear evidence in a provincial matter. With regard to the other complaints he has prepared his defence, based on the rights and priviledges of his office.

The Macdonald will case already has been used by the members of the Manitoba Court of Appeal and the Court of King's Bench as the basis for punitive action against Judge Stubbs, but no results were obtained. The members of these courts petitioned the King Government to take action against Judge Stubbs, but Hon. Ernest Lapointe, then Minister of Justice, adopted the attitude that since Judge Stubbs' conduct centred about his official capacity as a judge of the surrogate court a provincial appointment—the federal government had no authority to act in the matter. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, present Minister of Justice, apparently holds a different view.

Judge Stubbs has been at odds with the Attorney-General's department of and on for eight years, although it is only during the last three years that this situation has been intensified. Back in 1924 he was a member of the city police commission, by virtue of his office as senior county court judge. A year after he became a member of the commission he engaged in a controversy with Hon. R. W. Craig, then Attorney-General, as a result of differences between the city and the province over the enforcement of liquor laws. Judge Stubbs charged the provincial government with shirking its responsibility in liquor law enforcement and announced he would petition the legislature to relieve him of his duties as a police commissioner, since he could not resign, his position being a statutory one.

During this controversy Judge Stubbs wrote a letter to the Winnipeg newspapers, advocating inter alia, the sale of beer by the glass. To this Mr. Craig took strong exception, partly on the ground that Judge Stubbs was using government stenographers and notepaper for his letters. Judge Stubbs vigorously defended his position.

REFUSED TO ATTEND

Ultimately he refused to attend further meetings of the police commission, and the legislature eventually amended the city charter to permit any county court judge to act on the police commission.

Apart from that incident, matters flowed fairly smoothly until three years ago, since which time he has been pretty steadily in the public eye. First it was the Macdonald will case, then his attack on the Provincial Legislature for reducing his salary as a surrogate judge last winter and now with respect to utterances from the bench on the manner in which, as he sees the matter, justice is administered as between the rich and the poor.

During that three-year period Judge Stubbs has come to be regarded by many as a defender of the poor. In his lecture on "The Law and the Poor," which has been delivered many times in Winnipeg, he appears as a friend of the underdog.

It is understood that there have been objections by his brother judges and law officers of the crown to many of his remarks, but, apart from the Macdonald will case, no action was contemplated against him until he began to use his courtroom, while delivering judgments, to discourse upon what he terms the preferential treatment accorded the rich men who run afoul of the law.

Judge Stubbs has announced that he welcomes the investigation. He stated publicly and in pamphlets he had printed that if he is brought to trial he will deliver a scathing indictment of the judiciary of Canada. He declares he will conduct his own defense.

"Indiscreet—certainly; injudicious—perhaps; I have not been a conventional judge, but I have said nothing from the bench of which I need feel ashamed. If the references I have made to the inequality of the administration of justice have aroused resentment it seems to me the authorities should be more concerned with remedying the causes than in censoring the one who points out the deficiencies," he told me.

WHAT MANNER MAN?

Who is this man who has constituted himself such a vexatious problem that the authorities consider it necessary to have his fitness to remain on the bench looked into? What manner of man is he? What of his parentage, his background, his education and his philosophy of life?

Judge Stubbs was born at Turk's Island, a group of dots on the Atlantic ocean, just north of Cuba, on June 4, 1878, of staunch English stock. His forbears migrated to that settlement from Georgia after the War of Independence. They correspond to the United Empire Loyalists, who crossed into Canada, but being so far from Canada they went south, instead of north. They had been planters in Georgia, so when the colonies seceded from England they gathered together their slaves and other possessions and took themselves out of the country. There successive generations remained.

Young Lewis experienced the ambition of every youth—freedom from studies during the early years. School facilities were very limited on the island, so the boy received no schooling until he was 13. Then he was sent to England as had been his brothers and sisters. He never returned to Turk's Island as a resident. He has visited it, though, many times since.

He was sent to Denstone, a high church school, in Staffordshire, after which he went on to Christ's college at Cambridge. His studies there were interrupted by the Boer war, in which he was the first to enlist from the college cadet corps.

On his return he was lauded by college heads for his patriotic stand and was accorded the freedom of the borough. His name was signed on the roll immediately after that of the late Lord Kitchener, who had been honored for his work in the Sudan.

His experiences in South Africa bred a restlessness in the young student, he found it hard to overcome. He could not settle down to the prosaic academic career he had left to join the colors. A. C. Richards, K.C., a London barrister with whom he had formed a friendship, advised him to quit the study of medicine and read law. He even offered to take Stubbs into his own law office. Stubbs declined and returned to his home in the West Indies, where he remained the better part of a year.

LURE OF CANADA

The lure of Canada seized him and he decided to come here and take up farming. That was in 1902. He admits frankly now that he had erroneous ideas of the ease with which a Canadian farmer might become prosperous, but he came, nevertheless, and worked as a common farm hand for a year.

"That was one of the best years of my life," he admitted. "Contact with the people of the soil gave me a vast understanding of their problems and fortified me with a great fund of knowledge when I eventually took up the practice of law in a country town."

He remained on the farm until the middle of November and then moved into Winnipeg for the winter. A plan had formed in his mind to go to British Columbia and take up fruit farming, but romance intervened. He met the woman who later became Mrs. Stubbs and the whole course of his life was changed.

Casting about for a means of livelihood he recalled the advice of his London friend, Richards, and he articled himself to ex-Chief Justice Perdue, then head of the legal firm of Perdue, and Johnson, later changed to Rothwell and Johnson when Perdue was elevated to the bench. In 1906, three years after entering office, he was admitted to partnership and the firm became known as Rothwell, Johnson and Stubbs.

In the fall of 1908, C. J. Mickle, of Birtle, was created the first judge in the northern judicial district and Stubbs went to Birtle to take over his practice. He remained there until March, 1922, when he was elevated to a county court judgeship in the eastern judicial district, with headquarters in Winnipeg.

In politics Mr. Stubbs was an advanced Liberal. In 1917, during the war-time election campaign, Stubbs refused to desert his Liberal chieftain. Laurier desired him to run as a straight Liberal in his own constituency, Marquette, but he declined. He organized and bore the brunt of a fiery campaign, but his party candidate was defeated.

UNPOPULAR CAUSE

Four years later he again chose to espouse an unpopular cause. Hon. T. A. Crerar, then at the height of his power as leader of the Progressive party, was running in Marquette against Brig.-Gen. Dyer. MacKenzie King personally requested Stubbs to run against these strong candidates. Stubbs looked upon the candidature as hopeless, but he entered the contest only to finish a poor third.

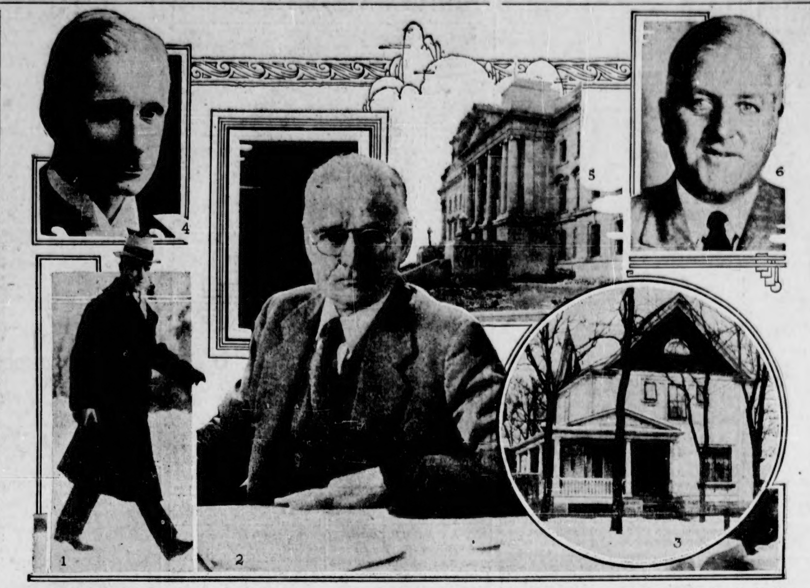
His elevation to the county court bench came the following spring and he finished ten years as a county court judge last March.

Upon completion of his ten-year term he applied for retirement and pension but his request was denied. Only a few weeks ago he was offered retirement and pension, but refused to accept either unless the present complaints against him were quashed. This has not been done.

Stubbs was catapulted into the limelight of his own volition in 1929 and 1930 when, as surrogate judge he refused to grant letters of administration in the estate of Alexander Macdonald, millionaire Winnipeg merchant, to Macdonald's daughter, Mrs. Grace Forlong, and his son-in-law, John A. Forlong. The Manitoba Court of Appeals granted issuance of letters of administration to Mrs. Forlong and her husband over Stubbs' stubborn resistance.

The action of the appeal court in issuing or causing to be issued, the letters of administartion before his final judgment was read, was regarded by Judge Stubbs as an affront to his court. He also charged that the Court of Appeal held the session during which the letters of administration were granted without his knowledge.

In righteous wrath Judge Stubbs called a public meeting in the Walker theatre to which he read his written judgment giving his reason for refusing to grant letters of administration to Mrs. Forlong and her husband. He introduced and caused to be passed at that meeting a resolution calling upon the legislature to invalidate the action of the court of appeal. The legislature took no notice of the resolution and, apart from having stirred up public feeling Stubbs' only reward was to be made the subject of a petition on the part of members of the court of appeal and the court of King's bench to the minister of justice to have him removed. The minister of justice declined to act for reasons already noted.



Principal figures in the royal commission which will begin an inquiry into the judicial conduct of Judge Lewis St. George Stubbs at Winnipeg, Jan. 11. (1) Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general of Manitoba, who launched the complaints against Judge Stubbs. (2) Judge Stubbs at his desk in the senior county court judge's office. (3) Judge Stubbs' modest home in Norwood. (4) Mr. Justice Frank Ford, of the Alberta supreme court, who will constitute the one-man royal commission. (5) A section of the law courts, where the inquiry will be held. (6) Arthur Sullivan, Winnipeg lawyer, who will represent the minister of justice before the commission.

His next serious brush with the authorities came during the 1931-32 session of the Manitoba legislature, at which a bill was introduced by the government reducing the salary of surrogate court judges. As senior county court judge, and also a judge of the surrogate court, Judge Stubbs resented this interference with his salary. He contended that the stipend of a probate judge was not subject to the legislature and was fixed by statute. He attacked the government and Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general through the medium of virtriolic letters to the press, but the house passed the bill. Stubbs resigned from the surrogate court as a protest.

The four criminal cases tried before Judge Stubbs during the course of which he made remarks from the bench to which the attorney-general took exception, were respectively the Duddles, Tansowny, Gibson and Rae cases.

Duddles pleaded guilty to two charges of housebreaking. Several prominent persons testified to his previous good character, one offered to give him employment, while the evidence showed the man had fallent through drink.

In summing up the case Judge Stubbs, during the course of his remarks, said:

"I am going to give you a chance, but you have got to leave drink alone. You will never be able to get away with petty thefts like stealing guns, even though you be under the influence of drink. To get away with crimes you have to be in it on a pretty big scale, steal a million or two or things of that kind. You have got to be a real big thief, and then perhaps you will get away with it, and even be rewarded, but not so long as you are a working man, Duddles. I am going to give you six months suspended sentence on each count."

Tansowny was declared guilty of driving to the common danger. In commenting on a plea for suspended sentence from defence counsel, Judge Stubbs said:

HARD TO KNOW

"It is extremely difficult to know how to deal with a case of this sort and what punishment to mete out, and it is becoming increasingly difficult for some courts to know how to gauge their sentences for criminal offences, because when rich rogues and wealthy scoundrels and those possessed of social opwer and political influence can get off with nominal sentences, or very light sentences, it is extremely embarrassing for the conscientious judge, with some sense of justice and proportion, to know how to sentence the ordinary run of poor men with no social power and no influential friends who come before him. The age-long grievance that there is one law for the poor and another for the rich, has been strikingly illustrated throughout Canada in the last year or two, and when a few wealthy rogues can steal more money than all the bank robbers, holdup men and common thieves since Canada began, and get off with nominal punishment, is it very disturbing, not only to some judges, but, more serious still, to the public mind. I am going to deal leniently with the accused and sentenced him to two weeks imprisonment."

Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general, forwarded a report to the minister of justice covering these two cases, one paragraph of which is given here:

"I submit that the conduct of His Honor Judge Stubbs in these two cases is injurious to the administration of justice in Manitoba."

Yvone Gibson pleaded guilty to a perjury charge. In commenting on the case before passing sentence, Judge Stubbs made this reference to Attorney-General Major's speech in the legislature concerning reduction in the probate judge's salary list:

"You have pleaded guilty to what is very rightly in law considered a very serious offence—the offence of perjury, out of court known as common or garden lying. In court, where false statements are made under oath, it is called perjury. But lying is lying, wherever it is made, and whenever it is made whether it is done by the attorney-general of the province on the floor of the legislature in defaming one of His Majesty's judges, or whether it is done by a humble citizen like yourself."

MAJOR REMONSTRATES

In forwarding his report to the minister of justice on this case, Hon. W. J. Major wrote:

"I submit with the greatest deference that when he imposed sentence as aforesaid there was no warrant whatever for His Honor, Judge Stubbs, stating as follows: " 'Whether done by the Attorney-General of this province on the floor of the legislature in defaming one of His Majesty's judges.'

"I submit further that I am speaking in moderation when I say that the proper and orderly administration of civil and criminal justice in Manitoba and the respect for constituted authority in Manitoba are being seriously undermined by the conduct of His Honor, Judge Stubbs, in the above and other instances.

"I suggest that your government take such action as it deems proper under the circumstances."

The fourth and final case cited by the Attorney-General concerns Charles Rae, charged with theft of $2,480 from his employers. Judge Stubbs acquitted him, declaring the crown failed to prove its case, in that it had failed to show that Rae was the only man handling the moneys eventually stolen. As a matter of record the evidence proved that three others had handled the money. In summing up the case and delivering judgment, Judge Stubbs said:

"The Martin case has been dragged in here several times. On the basis of the Martin case and the findings of the court of appeal, if I were to find this man guilty and sentence him—if, as Court of Appeal has held, a term of 18 months' imprisonment is a proper sentence for the theft of $284,000, what would be the proper proportionate sentence for this man?

"I am going to acquit you, Mr. Rae, and the next time you get into trouble you will have a big credit coming to you on your offence."

The latter part of the sentence caused some confusion in the public mind, inasmuch as it was not amplified. A search of the court record revealed that Rae had been in jail for three and one-half months awaiting trial and Judge Stubbs indicated that Rae should receive credit for this time should he ever be convicted on a future occasion.

In drawing the attention of the minister of justice to the Rae case Hon. Mr. Major wrote:

"I am sending herewith copy of the reporter's notes taken during the hearing of the above mentioned case. I wish particularly to draw your attention to the comments of His Honor, Judge Stubbs, the presiding judge, regarding the Court of Appeal in this province.

"It is hard to conceive of anything which would tend to create contempt for the courts of justice of this province or to bring into disrepute administration of the criminal law than remarks such as this from a judge sitting in one of the criminal courts of this province. I submit that this is a proper case in which your department should take action."

The foregoing are the complaints or charges, upon which Mr. Justice Ford will decide whether Judge Stubbs is a fit and proper person to continue to dispense justice in one of His Majesty's courts in Winnipeg.

MAN IN STREET

The man in the street may be tempted to ask some pertinent questions at this point. Why should Judge Stubbs jeopardize his $5,000 a year position by criticizing the actions of other and higher courts over which he has no jurisdiction? Why doesn't he content himself with administering justice in his own court in an impartial manner, calculated to give equal justice to all, regardless of wealth or social position? How can he hope to reform the judicial system of Canada single-handed?

The answer seems to be that Judge Stubbs is a militant type of man. The study of criminology has been a hobby which has developed into a study. He does not believe in capital punishment. He does not believe incarceration is a cure for crime. He believes that the handling of crime and criminals should be entrusted to those who have been trained professionally for this particular type of work. Even the man on the beat should receive special training, as advanced by August Vollmer, chief of the Berkeley, California, police force. He is convinced that few judges and few lawyers have received sufficient proper training for their work. He would scrap the entire system and introduce an entirely new one, based on more humanitarian principles.

"I am utterly opposed to capital punishment," he said, "also the lash, or to any other form of physical torture in the punishment of criminals. Cruel punishments have an inevitable tendency to produce cruelty in the people. They are the rude justice of a barbarous age. In our age and with the resources which civilization has placed within the reach of civil government, there is no need and no justification for them. The lesson of history and every consideration of reason and humanity are against them.

"Our forefathers believed in capital punishment as one of the chief methods and instruments of government. In the reign of Henry VIII., it is estimated that 72,000 executions took place, mostly for quite minor offences; and as late as the beginning of the nineteenth century the English law recognized more than two hundred capital crimes. Felling a tree, stealing five shillings, robbing a rabbit-warren, and pocket picking were all capital offences, while you could be hanged for associating a month with gypsies.

FEROCIOUS SENTENCES

"Samuel Rogers tells how he once met a cartload of young girls, in dresses of various colors, on their way to be executed at Tyburn. In 1831, a boy of thirteen was hanged at Maidstone. Two years later a boy of nine was hanged for stealing tuppence worth of painting colors from a shop window.

"All these ferocious sentences, and their affiliction, even upon young children, were strenuously defended by those in authority as essential for the protection of society—just as legal cruelty in connection with the punishment of crime is defended today.

"What are your views on the deterrent and curative effects of incarceration?" I asked him.

"Again the lesson of history and experience is that incarceration neither deters nor cures. Imprisonment has been demonstrated to be a failure. It does not protect modern society, any more than the wholesale infliction of the death penalty did in other days. It does not deter criminals from committing crimes, any more than the horrible mutilations and terrible tortures did in former times. The prison as a means of reformation has not been successful. Instead, the prison now rests under the indictment of being one of the chief contributing causes in the making of criminals.

"The failure of the prison is not a new discovery. It has been used with increasing reluctance for some time. This has shown itself in efforts to shorten sentences through the use of the pardon, commutation, the indeterminate sentence and parole and the tendency to avoid the use of the prison by suspended sentence, probation and other methods. The development of these alternative methods of punishment has not been accidental. They grow out of an increasing consciousness that imprisonment is a failure and mark the beginning of a movement that will result in its ultimate abandonment for all purposes other than the permanent segregation of those offenders who cannot be reclaimed by society through the scientific methods of the future."

"Assumming that incarceration is not a cure for crime what would be your suggestion?" I inquired.

"The question raises one of the gravest problems confronting our civilization. Although society from time to time gives a reluctant consideration to the problems of crime and the criminal, it does not give them the attention they deserve.

"Modern society is already in possession of sufficient knowledge in respect to crime to warrant sweeping changes in our present procedure. An enormous amount of information relative to the nature and causes of crime has been accumulated in the last few decades. But there is no hope of improvement so long as we continue to follow the futile and traditional procedures of another day. The whole system is wrong, because based upon worn-out theological and metaphysical conceptions regarding human nature and social relationships. We must substitute an intelligent and rational system in its place based upon the scientific knowledge we now possess.

METHOD OF ATTACK

"The method of attack upon the problem of crime and the criminal must be the same as for all other social problems. The education of the public alone offers encouragement for ultimate success. The public must be sufficiently informed to realize the need for reform. When they realize the need they will demand the change. And when the time comes there must be an available supply of properly trained persons to operate the new technique.

"Reform depends more upon men and methods than machinery. The present system would work much better if it were manned by a properly trained and organized personnel. If crime is to be handled scientifically, it must be done by trained men and women. A minimum requirement for a scientific system would be:

"(a) A professionally trained police force, at least that part of it dealing with crime and criminals. Schools for training professional police have been operated in Europe for some time. A very successful institution of this character is operated by Vollmer in Berkeley, California. His candidates for training are carefully selected, and he has elevated the business of being a policeman from a 'job' to a profession;

"(b) Clinical experts, medical and otherwise, for studying and classifying the crime and the criminal who committed it;

"(c) Specially trained persons to supplant the present jury, together with socially educated judges and lawyers for determing the necessary social treatment of the offender and the protection of society. Men and women with specialized skill must be chosen to do specializing work. Under our present system our judges, counsel, solicitors and court officials are not required to know anything about the actual nature of crime and criminals, and few of them do. There is practically nothing in the training of lawyers, from the ranks of whom we recruit our judges, to qualify them for dealing with criminals; and

"(d) Properly trained persons for carrying out the decisions of these experts, either outside or inside of adequately equipped institutions.

CRIME SOCIAL DISEASE

"Crime is a social disease and the majority of criminals require much more specialized and much more individual treatment than is afforded by the ordinary, crude routine methods employed in our penal institutions. Reports from prisons, reformatories and courts in the United States, where special investigations have been made, show that at least 50 per cent of the inmates of state prisons are suffering from some form of nervous or mental disease or defect. Twenty-seven per cent were found to be feeble-minded and 47 per cent suffering from some form of social disease. These facts and conditions show the absolute necessity for medical clinics in connection with our courts and penal institutions, and the time is coming when they will be a regular part of their equipment."

I turned from a discussion of law reforms in general to propound two questions more closely relating to Judge Stubb's position toward the federal and provincial governments and his freedom to speak as he desires from the bench.

"It is possible to dissociate the function of the judiciary completely from other functions of government," I inquired.

"The answer is in the affirmative," he responded. "Our consitution already provides and guarantees such independence. The consitution also establishes three great co-ordinate departments of government—the legislative, the executive and the judicial— and assigns to each the respective powers to be exercised by them within well-defined limits.

"The first maxim of a free state is, that the laws shall be made by one set of men and administered by another; in other words, that the legislative and judicial characters be kept separate. The judicial ought to be kept entirely distinct from the legislative and executive power of the state. This separation is necessary both to secure the independence of the judicial functions and to prevent their being influenced by the interests of party or by the voice of the people. These principles have been laid down by Archdeacon Paley and Lord Brougham, acknowledged authorities.

DELAYED INHERITANCE

"The judges' independence in Canada was developed at the same time as responsible government. In the earlier days in British North America judges held office during pleasure and mixed freely in politics; they held seats in the executive and legislative councils and were occasionally elected to seats in the assemblies. Thus until Confederation the Canadian judiciary did not come into its long-delayed inheritance. They then assumed a constitutional status similar to that of the judges of the United Kingdom."

The last question I asked bore directly on the complaints made against Judge Stubbs' conduct on the bench in the cases referred to.

"If a judge's actions are repeatedly of an anti-social nature, what course should be followed in respect to him?"

"In such case there is little that can be done, for the 'judge occupies the centre of a charmed circle whose circumference may not be violated by any government. If matrimony is a lottery, so also is the selection of judges. If you draw a bad bargain out of the bag you have to make the best of it—generally until death brings relief. An unsatisfactory judge is as hard to get rid of as an unsuitable spouse. He may be held accountable in only the rarest instances for actions and decisions within jurisdiction. He may have committed grave errors of judgment, he may even have been animated by improper motives, yet parliament will allow his conduct to remain unchallenged.

PROTECTION OF JUDGE

"There is no other official, using that term in its widest and most comprehensive sense, that possesses the independence, the irresponsibility, the immunity and the protection of the judge. His office presents the most absolute form of independence known to the constitution and his privileges are explicitly recognized and sanctioned by law.

"It is a principle of the common law of England now more than 300 years old, that a judge is not liable to civil or criminal action on any ground whatsoever for any wrong committed while acting on matters within his jurisdiction. The mantle of this protection has descended on the judges of the British colonies and dominions.

"The essential condition that must be fulfilled is that the act was within the judge's jurisdiction, and the only difference between the protection accorded to a superior court judge and to other judges lies in the extent of that jurisdiction.

"Lord Mansfield, a noted British jurist, has laid down the dictum that 'the judges are totally independent of the ministers that may happen to be, and of the King himself!' "

These are the views and the opinions held by the man whose public utterances from the bench have aroused authorities to question his fitness to continue his high judicial calling.

No one knows or can forecast accurately the outcome of the investigation. But the Canadian reading public will eagerly follow the day by day developments and await with unusual interest the outcome of the hearing.

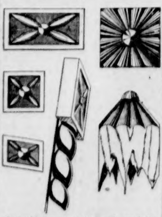
AUTO FOR REFUELING

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Airplanes conducting endurance tests in the future may not have to rely on refueling planes. A successful test was recently conducted on Muroc Dry Lake in refueling a plane from a speeding automobile. A special superstructure was erected on the top of the car and contact was made after a few minutes of maneuvering.

The export of wood pulp and screenings from Canada in November amounted to 1,002,¼605 cwt, valued at $1,813,885, which was greater than the October export and almost up to the quantity in November last year.

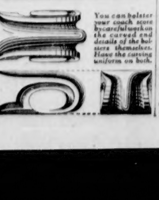
Small Details Will Make Model Coach Well Balanced Job

Illustration No. 17



The moulding terminal plates on the coach door and belt line moulding are further examples of small parts which are nevertheless important. The thickness of the plate should correspond to that of the moulding, as the sketch illustrates.

Illustration No. 18



You can bolster your coach score by careful work on the carved end details of the bolsters themselves. Have the carving uniform on both.

By FRANK C. RIESS
Technical Director, Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild

Someone has said that if we take care of the little things in life, the larger ones will take care of themselves.

Expressing this same though in terms of the model Napoleon coach, which Edmonton Bulletin Chapter members of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild are building in the $85,000 competition, we assume that if all the small coach details are correctly made, the finished model should be a well-balanced and pleasing piece of craftsmanship, that will score high when judged.

The design on the ends of the splinter bar is an example. It is simple and is easily made. Yet in checking over the score sheets of last year's competition, it is surprising to learn how few models received full credit on this detail.

Notice, too, the carving of the detail on the ends of the two bolsters. The bolster ends should be wider at the bottom than at the top, a detail which seems to have escaped coach builders. Then there were the attention of many of last year's many models on which the carving was irregular and the outline of the design ragged. A small file would be handy here.

Another point to observe is that the carved design begins at the point where the spring is fastened to the bolster and not 1-16 of an inch, or 1-8 of an inch, away from this intersection. These are just two of the many small factors which go to make up a first-class coach. Other details will be mentioned in future articles.

ONE THING WITH ANOTHER

Moscow reports that Japan refused to sign a non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia, the negotiation of which has been under way for a year.

The refusal, it is adroitly explained, was due to "inability of the two countries to reconcile their opposing view-points."

That makes it all clear. The two countries did not agree because they differed.

Why they differed, and what were the conflicting objectives observable from their "opposing view-points," the world is left to guess. One guess is that both have designs on China and they cannot agree on how to divide the spoils.

WHY BORROW IN LONDON?

The city is ahead $11,514 on a payment of bond interest due in London. The pound has slumped farther than the dollar. Hence a dollar goes farther than usual in meeting a debt in London. To meet this particular payment required 11,514 fewer dollars than if the dollar and the pound were both at par.

Taxpayers of Calgary, and nearly every other Canadian city, will read this information with unpleasant reflections. They may recall Whittier's lines:

> "Of all sad words on tongue or pen,
> The saddest are these, 'It might have been'."

Had these cities done their borrowing in London, instead of in New York, they would not be worrying now about the exchange. The worrying, if any, would be done by the party at the other end of the transaction.

MR. COOLIDGE

Mr. Coolidge inherited the presidency of the United States on the death of Mr. Harding in 1923. He was elected to the office a year later, and thus served for more than five years as chief executive. That he would have been re-nominated, and re-elected, in 1928 seems probable, but for his decision "I do not choose to run."

The tariff policy and the international debt policy which Mr. Coolidge advocated and administered were harmful to international trade and contributing factors to the world depression. But there was never cause to doubt that he sincerely believed them to be in the best interests of the country whose welfare was entrusted to his keeping.

Abroad as at home he has been recognized as a man of sterling integrity and unusual ability, while his simplicity of life made him popular wherever he was known.

Canadians extend sympathy to their neighbors in the loss of a national leader whose counsel should in the normal course of things have been available to them for many years to come. No country can lose men of the Coolidge stamp without being the poorer.

SPLENDID ISOLATION

Mr. Babson thinks "current conditions can be described as ideal." He accordingly pays his respects to those who suggest the contrary.

He must be referring to "fundamental" conditions, whatever these may be. The conditions which are observable to ordinary mortals are a long way from ideal.

The twelve million idle in the United States see nothing idealistic in their circumstances, nor the 800,000 idle in Canada.

The farmers who cannot get enough for wheat or beef or pork to pay the cost of producing it will have to be pardoned if they dissent from the notion that things are as they would like them to be.

The investors who have seen the value of their industrial stocks and railway stocks dwindle to a trifle are not at all delighted at the course of events or the outlook.

These are classes of people who would seem to be concerned directly in "conditions." Employment, production and transportation are basic and vital interests, and unless and until improvement is apparent from those stand-points it is too idealistic to be useful.

Mr. Babson may be right, if one understands the mysterious processes of economic astrology. It is to be hoped he is right. But if he is right, about 130,000,000 people on this continent are wrong.

BUSINESS FIRST

The outlook is said to be that the legislature will not do much law-making at the coming session. A session of that kind will be a novelty in Alberta, or any of the other provinces.

If the event makes good the promise, the lawyers will have a chance to catch up their arrears and find out what laws have already been made and provided for the regulation of life and conduct in this province.

As for the layman, who is supposed to obey all laws, he has long since given up hope of knowing what they are, and can only walk in fear and trembling. The courts still flatter him by pretending to think he knows what the law is, but neither party is deceived.

The legislators will have plenty to do without undertaking the annual overhaul of the statute book, and the taxpayers will think none the less of them if they attend more to business than to law-making.

There is the matter of debt readjustment calling urgently for attention. Debts are not being paid, and cannot be paid from the present proceeds of investment and labor. How to make them payable is a subject that will occupy the members for a while.

Taxes will also have to be adjusted. Premier Anderson has indicated what Saskatchewan will do in that direction. That the proposals go far enough is doubtful. Like debts, high taxes cannot be paid in low priced commodities. Extending arrears over a period of years is an easement, but that will only postpone trouble unless the times improve.

The question of continuing relief, in what measure, and how, is another problem that calls for attention. Thus far only minimum relief has been given. But the cost is a heavy drain on the provincial treasury. And as the cities exhaust their resources, the drain must grow heavier.

Last, but not least, is the question of how the province is to get through the coming year without increasing taxation or borrowing more money. To attempt to increase revenue by either means would be dangerous. What can the legislature do in the way of cutting the cost of government?

From the Files of the Edmonton Bulletin

The machinery for the new roller mill in South Edmonton has all arrived and a staff fof millwrights are busy getting it in place. It is all new and of the latest pattern, and Edmonton is to have a mill capable of turning out the highest class of flour made in the Dominion.

One of the heaviest snow-falls ever known in Edmonton commenced Saturday afternoon and continued without interruption until Monday morning. The snow was light and soft and piled up to the depth of about twenty-two inches. Of course it is possible to have too much even of a good thing, but for the past few years we have had too little snow, and the present fall is therefore the more welcome.

The Indians on the reserve at Whitefish lake have finished threshing, and have about 3,000 bushels of grain. The department has provided a steam thresher, and machinery has been sent in for a flour mill. Ptarmigan, or white partridges, are being seen there in considerable numbers. The bird is seldom seen this far south.

Poems That Live

VIXI

I have lived and I have loved;
I have waked and I have slept;
I have sung and I have danced;
I have smiled and I have wept;
I have won and wasted treasure;
I have had my fill of pleasure;
And all these things were weariness,
And some of them were dreariness;—
And all these things, but two things,
Were emptiness and pain:
And Love—it was the best of them;
And Sleep—worth all the rest of them,
Worth everything but Love to my spirit and my brain,
Be still my friend, O Slumber,
Till my days complete their number,
For Love shall never, never return to me again!
—Charles Mackay (1814-1889)

It's a small world that we live in. And terribly tangled. When, last spring, a mob of Newfoundlanders rioted in St. John's, threatening to throw Premier Squires into the harbor, some of us may have thought that we weren't much concerned. It was just something in the news. Now, however, we're being called upon to put up $600,000 to meet some of the extravagances of this same Premier Squires, over whose adventures the Newfoundlanders rioted.—Ottawa Journal.

A CANADIAN DUEL

On January 3rd, 133 years ago, there took place at York (Toronto) one of the famous duels in Canadian history. John White was attorney general for Upper Canada (the first); John Small was clerk of the executive council. They and their families had been close friends.

During the festive Christmas season of 1799, White made use of langauge concerning Mrs. Small that must, according to the ethics of the time, lead to the death of either himself or Mrs. Small's natural defender. The language was inexcusable if untrue, more so if true, and White must have known (if he was himself) the inevitable result. The occasion of the shameful language is not known. The language, as given in the letters of William Jarvis, then provincial secretary, is of the most offensive character, and no greater insult can be imagined.

Small promptly challenged White—a challenge which could not be declined and which must lead to the gravest consequences. White was under no misapprehension as to the seriousness of the situation. The day before that set for the duel he made his will.

The two duellists met on January 3, 1800, in Government park, in a grove behind the government building on Palace street (now Front street). White fell, shot in the body, the bullet passing between the second and third ribs on the right side. In the then state of medical science the wound was almost necessarily fatal. White was carried to his home and there died after 36 hours of agony.

Small was tried for murder at York January 20 before Mr. Justice Allock and a jury, the foreman being William Jarvis. The verdict was "not guilty."

Mrs. White and her children were left in a state of poverty, for, though White had shared in the lavish hands-out of crown lands to public officials, there was no market for it. Those who desire further details about this strange figure in the early history of Upper Canada will find it in an article by Mr. Justice Riddell in Ontario Historical Papers, volume XXIII.

Horoscope

By Mary Blake

If January 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:50 p.m., from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11.15 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 3.15 p.m. to 4 p.m.

A general feeling of contentment should pervade the atmosphere on this January 8th. The outdoors and country side will call and much satisfaction will come from exhilarating exercise taken in the open air. Social gatherings and functions should "go off" smoothly.

The child born on this January 8th will have a decided aptitude for the study of languages; encourage him along this line. He will mix well with all kinds of people and should prove himself a great student of human nature. He will be modest, but at the same time forceful. He will be very kind, but he will never allow himself to be taken advantage of. Look for him to "get there."

If January 9th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and again from 7:30 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Influences on this day will be of a disturbing nature. You will find yourself on "pins and needles" and extremely restless. Conflicting forces will seem to make it difficult to make decisions, and even after you have made up your mind on a set course of actions, you will be hesitant about following it. A proposal of marriage is uncertain of outcome.

Born on this January 9th, the child will be rather difficult to handle. Strong tempered and inclined to be wilful it will always strive to have its own way. This child cannot be handled with "kid-gloves." To "spare the rod" early in life may lead to difficulties at an older age. The child should show marked leanings towards things mathematical and mechanical.

HOW TO STOP EAR NOISES

Judging from the number of letters I receive on ear noises, or head noises, this trouble is very common. An unusual feature is that more inquiries about ringing in the ears come in from the readers in cold northern countries such as Canada than from the readers in warm southern states such as Louisiana.

One suffering from ear noises hears a ringing, buzzing, roaring or whirring sound. The patient cannot escape from these sounds and the effect is that he is distressed and annoyed. When the attacks are occasional the results are not so marked, but when the noises are present a good share of the time the results are maddening and the patient then rushes from doctor to doctor seeking relief from these haunting noises which interfere with work, play or rest. Remember back to some time when you were harrassed by continual noise for a few hours from hammering, a dripping faucet, or street work and then imagine how you would feel if this distracting noise kept up day after day.

Many times these patients suffer from a double affliction as impaired hearing and ear noises may go together. In this way they find that the sounds of the outside world are growing fainter and the noises inside the ears are growing louder.

The immediate irritation which produces the throbbing noise may be caused by High Blood Pressure in the blood vessels of the inner ear, or to an accumulation of catarrhal mucus around the delicate apparatus which enables

The Passing Show

By J. S. Cowper

Now that South Africa, the largest producer of gold in the world, has rejected the gold standard for its national currency, Canadians are asking if Canada would not act wisely to take similar action. South Africa's action has revived the demand that the Canadian dollar be tied to the British pound.

With Calgary refusing to discharge its bonds in gold; with Ottawa refusing to supply Calgary with gold at par; with the business world calling out for inflation, Sir Thomas White, former Finance Minister, and Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal, issuing public statements warning against any depreciation of the dollar, it is easily seen that there are conflicting interests at issue over the question of Canada's currency. It isn't even clear whether we're on the gold standard or not. We're in the position of the army of that famous Duke of York in the nursery rhyme who marched his men to the top of the hill and marched them down again:

> And when they were up they were up,
> And when they were down they were down,
> But when they were in the middle of the hill
> They were neither up nor down.

* * *

Let us look at the situation. First let us see the position of the Canadian wheat grower.

The wheat grower sells his product on the basis of competitive prices set on the Liverpool Corn Exchange. He sells in competition with his brother in Australia or his rival in Argentina.

Argentina and Australia, like England have inflated their currencies to meet post-war conditions. This means that their currencies sell at low prices on the New York exchange—very much below that of the Canadian dollar which is "pegged" from time to time by gold shipments. Australia's pound sells below that of Britain. It takes 125 Australian pounds to buy 100 British pounds.

See what happens when a British broker buys £100 worth of imported wheat.

If it is Australian wheat, the 100 British pounds are turned into 125 Australian pounds. The Australian grower gets £125.

If it is Argentina wheat, the 100 British pounds are turned into pesos. At 42 pesos to the pound the Argentina grower gets the equivalent of £115 at par.

If it is Canadian wheat, the 100 British pounds are turned into Canadian dollars. With the Canadian dollar at $3.76, the Canadian grower receives roughly £77 pounds at par.

By the inflation of Australian currency (or the depreciation of the Australian pound, to express it in another way) the Australian grower gets 80 cents a bushel for his wheat when the Canadian grower gets but 50. When it comes to paying rent, taxes, mortgage, wages and domestic debts, the Australian wheat grower has the benefit of 80 cent wheat.

Depreciation of the Canadian dollar down to the level of the British pound would add nearly 30 per cent to the domestic value of Canadian wheat.

* * *

And now for the other side of the story. Canada, unfortunately for us today, has done most of her financing in New York, instead of in London. Had Calgary done its financing in London instead of in New York, it would not be worrying today about gold premiums. It would be in the happy position of New Westminster, B.C., which is saving a lot of money by paying off a bond issue in British pounds at around $3, made when the British pound was $4.86.

While Calgary is refusing to pay the gold premium, its most prominent citizen, from his vantage point at Ottawa is doing all he can to keep up the price of the Canadian dollar at New York. True, Mr. Bennett has $15,500,000 of interest to pay to London on Dominion loans, calling for about £3,200,000 interest at par, which he was able to buy for £2,480,000 with the pound at $3.76. But he also has $371,000,000 of Dominion loans in New York to pay interest on, calling for about $18,800,000 interest in New York funds. As it costs 118 Canadian dollars to buy 100 United States dollars, that $18,800,000 interest will cost Premier Bennett about $22,500,000 to buy.

If the Canadian dollar was tied to the British pound, and the British pound was stabilized at its present level, that $18,800,000 of annual interest, payable in U. S. funds would cost Premier Bennett about $26,400,000 to buy. That is probably one Ottawa reason why the dollar is not being tied to the pound.

* * *

Sir Thomas White estimates that federal, provincial, municipal and commercial borrowings from United States, total well onto four billions, and that of this total about three billions will have to be renewed by fresh borrowings within a few years. He estimates that interest and principal payments falling due in 1933 will total 250 million dollars.

There is the situation as tersely and impartially as I can put it. In its primary consideration, the interest of the financial world is opposed to that of the farmer. Just as the farmer feels he is being made a sacrifice on the altar of the financial structure, so finance fears lest it be wrecked in the unknown waters of currency inflation. At present the two forces are deadlocked.

* * *

These problems are not simple ones. They cannot be settled by primary considerations. They have a vast complexus of reactions, too intricate to follow far.

Who can say what inflation means—whether the mad dog inflation of the German Republicans when a man who faithfully subscribed to an endowment for his old age, at maturity found it sufficient in purchasing power merely to buy a straw hat, or whether a rigidly controlled method.

The farmer is the ultimate wealth producer. St. James Street, if it had the power, would not wish to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. No deadlock can last for ever unless both combatants die.

Technocracy looks upon the network of debt in which the world is entrapped. It says that the net will have to be cut; that the load will have to be thrown down because amortised debt—much of it for obsolete equipment and non-revenue producing services—grows faster than man's ability under the existing system to carry it.

We may see interest rates cut; a great conversion loan such as now saves Great Britain $190,000,000 a year; radical changes in the Bank Act and in our currency system; the withdrawal of credit from private hands and its administration as a public utility; the lowering of the price of money to the level of other commodities; the rise of new parties with new remedies.

All this article aims to do is to uncover the issue. It is an issue vital to the people of the western provinces.

Around Ye Towne

By W. A. de Graves

Saturday, December 31

New Year's Eve. Up, singing a gaye stave or two, and to breakfast, the noggin' of orange juice, chilled, tasteing mightie magnolius this daye. And to askeing my lovelie dove where we shall spend this New Yeare's Eve—with friends, or at some publick taverne? And the sausie wench doth retort "We shall spend the evening quietlie at home, zany, and see that you be here, for I well remember in 1928 at Sir Ames Miller's house where you tried to hang from the chandelier by your knees, and 1929 when you and Sir Dick McDonald tried to juggle three soft-boiled eggs; and the New Yeare's Eve at the Macdonald taverne in 1930 when you disgraced me by trying to kiss that little blonde wench, and 1931 when you tried to dive into the gold fish bowls at Sir Stuart Fraser's, and 1932 when you led the orchestra at the Armories and sobbed because they wouldn't let you playe the drums," and, Heaven helpe, me, I be mightie angrie at the prettie red-head's wordes, but said naught in reply, lest she remember even worse monkie shines and anticks, such an inconvenient memorie she has. And anon to the printery, where to findeing there be a big package from Vancouver, the whiche containes a camel, a rare animal whiche can go thirty dayes without a drinke, but why it is sent to me I knowe not, albeit the lowe raffish fellowes there declare it be but for an example. But to finding that the camel be far from thirstie, so that I muste to the boulevardes with him and his load, twisting his tail with rare dexteritie, the which results ina noggin of parsnip wine, so that he be in great demand this evening. And in the evening home with Sir Nick Smith, and the camel, mightie intriguing to the Mistress Marry and Geraldine, so that it be a hard task to put them to bed this nighte and my dame declares she will call the night watch and so be it I do not quit these shenanigans. So to quitting the shenanigans, and sitting at home like a good citizen until it be too irksome, when to cozening my lovelie dove to put on her best bib and tucker, and we to the citie, where to joineing the revellers, arriveing home at three a.m. to finde ther be a message from Sir Kenny and the Lady Grace and we muste to these fine neighboures, the whiche we do, findeing there Sir Alex and the Lady Bonneau, and the Mistress Grace and others, and we to sitting downe to a fine turkie dinner, not arriveing home until five a.m. so that I berate my dame for her layte houres and her weakness, she haveing allowed me to lead her along the primrose path after all her fine resolutions, but Lorde, suche a fine time we have and so merrie we be that she forgives this levitie, and soone, fonde enoughe, to bed and to sleepe. So passed this daye.

Sunday, January 1

New Yeare's daye. Lay long abed this daye, easing my old rheumatick bones, and nursing a vile headacke, and declaring to my dame that never againe will I step out on New Yeare's Eve, but Lorde, the weasel wordes stick in my throate, such a black lie this is. And anon comes Sir Kenny and the Lady Grace, so that I must arise for a noggin or two of hops, and what with taykeing a glass with this one and that one I am soone forgetting this great fatigue. And in the evening to call on Sir Ames and the Lady Dora Miller, and finding there Sir Oliver and the Lady Pickard, Milord Herb Bergmann and his lady, Sir J. J. McDonell, the leech, and the lady McDonell, the Colonel Louis and the Lady Scott, Sir Reg. and the Lady Merryweather, the Hon. Tom Symons and the Lady Symons, and the McLean of McLean, a Highland Laird, and we to playeing a rare game, with the deuces wilde, so that by great skille and dexteritie I win five shillings from these gamesters, after whiche to dining on rare lobster patties, with a flagon of the Lady Dora's elderberrie wine, and a noggin or two of hops veric delecktable, and in suche fine fettle I be that I show the Mistress Mary and the Mistress hilda how to suck hens eggs with whiche to make a necklace, but Heaven helpe me, they show no great aptitude at this trick, and my dame declares I be nought but a disgrace and that she will take me home, the whiche she does. So to home, and in dire disgrace, to bed.

Monday, January 2

A holidaye, and laye layte abed this daye, still in disgrace, my dame declaring that never againe will she be seene in publick with me, but Lorde, it be but her playefulness, and she soone pleasant when I tell her how muche I enjoyed this New Year's in her companie instead of with the low raffish fellowes of the Elkes clubbe, or dancing on ale house tables, or in other low anticks with my ribald companions, but Heaven helpe me, it is a black lie, for I had far liefer be uot with the merrie roisterers of the boulevardes, such a great lunatick I am. So to stayeing in all daye, playeing with Nick the Pooch, and listening to a brave tayle from the babie Audrie Jane of the anticks of her dolls and her Teddy beares, albeit I do not believe these prettie toys say to her the things she declares they do, such a marvellous imagination she has. And in the evening to the printery, but not for long, returnnig eftsoone to the familie hearth, such a fine father I am, and so flat in the purse. So passed this daye.

Tuesday, January 3

Up veric betimes and by electrick coache to the printery, meeting on the way Sir Percie Shamper, the deep-sea sailor; and Sir Herb Goodridge, the theatrickal impresario. And all daye at my stint, writeing of this and that and whatnot, and in the afternoone to the Macdonald where Sir Tony tells me of the accident which befalls the Lady Tilly this daye, she haveing been put "on the spot," so that there is a hot time in the old towne this night. And anon home, and to the clubbe where to meeting Sir Bill McColg, the hardware king, Sir Leo Pluto, the transportation magnate, Sir Fred Ruiter and Sir Glen Shirtcliff, and seeing Sir Harry Sapero, the bridge experte, taken into camp by Sir Alex Bonneau and Milord Alex Linde, and suche noisie carde playeing never before did I heare, but Lorde, it mightie enjoyeable so that it be cockcrowe when I arryve home, and with greate goode fortune find my dame asleep so that she can ask nought of my wanderings this nighte. And so to bed.

Wednesday, January 4

Layte up and with a greate rushe to the printery, there being much toward, but Heaven helpe me I am in no moode for worke and sit at my deske like a ninnyhammer, glad enoughe when the whistle blows and I can leave for the Gobble and Gallop chop-house, meeteing there Sir Hal Crook, Sir Jack MacQuarrie and other charter members of the Three-Houres-for-Lunche clubbe, so that the time passes quicklie enoughe. And to the printery againe, and at my stint until it be time to put the great familie journal to bed, the whiche I do, after

Who Are You?

This surname is of Welsh origin and is very closely allied with the name Davis—both being a corruption of the personal name David. The first recorded mention of the surname appears in 1581, when one Robert ap David (son of David) assumed the name Davies as his family cognomen. It is said that in ancient Wales and England the names Davis and Davies combined r outnumbered those of Smith, rown, Jones, Williams or Taylor.

Among the early immigrants earing this name to come to the ew England States was Humphrey avies, a merchant, and son of Sir ohn Davies, of London. He arved in Boston in 1665.

The coat of arms here shown is ccredited to John Davies, who settled in Litchfield, Conn., in 1735. He as a descendant of John Davies "the elder," of England, and was orn in Kington Parish, County ereford, in 1680.

The lion rampant and passant as isplayed on the arms signifies eat physical strength and deathess courage, and are no doubt hown on the coat armor in commemoration of deeds of valor and

UNUSUAL TYPE SERVICE HELD IN ONTARIO

Church of Deaf Scene of Impressive Communion Ceremony

OSHAWA, Jan. 7—In a service of unusual character in St. Andrew's United Church, the minister administrated Holy Communion to the Oshawa branch of the Church of the Deaf. The service was conducted with the assistance of an interpreter, Mrs. J. R. Byrne, deaconess of the Church of the Deaf of Toronto, who displayed wonderful skill in making known to the worshippers the inspiring message of the sermon of Mr. Robb, and the significance of the sacramental service. To one with all the faculties of hearing and speach, the service was highly impressive. The small group of members of the church watched with keeness and interest the flying fingers and hands of Mrs. Byrne, as with signs and finger language, she interpreted the sermon, which dealt with the meaning of the sacrament to the people of God's Church.

Mrs. W. D. Bell, one of the members of the church, in sign language dramatized two beautiful and appropriate hymns, her actions and signs conveying in a striking way the meaning of the hymns. The group was greatly impressed by the beauty of her contribution to the service. Mr. W. D. Bell, at the close of the service, expressed the thanks of the congregation to Rev. Andrew Robb for his message and for administering the sacrament to the church, Mrs. Byrne interpreting his message into spoken language.

This group, the Church of the Deaf, meets regularly once a month for worship in St. Andrew's Church and had never celebrated the Lord's Supper in its services, owing to the the difficulty in finding a skilled interpreter.

EAST SENDS CLOTHING TO WEST'S NEEDY

Church Group Provides Cheer for 3,000 Children

TORONTO, Jan. 7—The National Emergency Relief Committee, made up of representatives of the Board of Home Missions, Evangelism and Social Service, and the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada has been active during the past weeks in securing relief in the form of clothing and food for needy sections of western Canada.

Conditions and activities were announced from the committee's office here yesterday as follows:

"While the need is not so great as last year, instances of severe suffering have been reported from various sections of the 'dried out' area. Churches have sent forward 560 bales of clothing several carloads of fruit and vegetables.

"A very interesting phase of the work has been the providing of Christmas Cheer for nearly 3,000 children in unorganized parts of northern Ontario and the 'dried out' sections of western Canada."

Rev. D. N. McLachlan, D.D., the secretary, says: "The response of the peaple of the East to the needs of the West has been hearty and generous. Further supplies will be needed throughout the long winter."

Manitoba churches are looking after their own problem and already Winnipeg has sent large quantities of clothing to rural districts.

Jesus Begins His Work

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Text: Mark 1:12-20.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 8.

By WM. S. GILROY, D.D.

The beginning of the work of Jesus was not, as one might have expected, in some great utterance or action. His ministry began where the ministry of all men begins, in the testing of his own soul.

So much emphasis has been made upon the theological doctrine of the divinity of Jesus that we are apt to forget that his divinity was revealed in his humanity. It was as "the man Christ Jesus" that he revealed the divine life and incarnated the God of live and grace in a world of sinful and needy men. Being human, he was subject to temptation, and we are reminded in Scripture that "he was in all points a tempted like as we are," and that "inasmuch as he suffered being tempted he is able to help them that are tempted."

It was in temptation, therefore, that the ministry of Jesus began, or temptation accompanied the beginning. Just what was the nature of the temptation and the testing of the sould of Jesus himself we can judge from the stories o fthe temptation as recorded in the Gospel of Matthew.

The three temptations there recored would seem to symbolize the temptation of a man conscious of his power to give his life to world dominion rather than to spiritual service, to exercise his power for vain and worldy ends instead of for the glory of God and for the salvation of humanity, or to use that power for trivial or magic ends instead of in fulfillment of the divine purpose in changing the hearts and lives of men.

The temptation was in the wilderness, which means that Jesus fought out the crucial battle and decision of life alone—that is, alone with God, and with the ministering spirits that came to him with ministering grace in the hour of his victory.

The testing of Jesus was, of course, not only in those days in the wilderness. All through the days of his early life until the agony of Gethsemane before the hour of the cross, Jesus was subjest to temptation. His spirit was tried; he felt the need of prayer, and he went at times into the wilderness and up to the mountain to pray. We are told in one case that he continued all night in prayer to God.

It ought to be a revelation to us of the way in which character is made strong and men are fitted for the work of ministering in Christian ways. If Jesus needed prayer, how much more do we need prayer?

The foundation of his ministry was in the things that brought him near to men as he was brought into the fullness of he relationship to his Father and the perfection of realizing and doing the Father's will. In the strength of the consciousness of his divine mission, he went out to gather men about him who would be capable of sharing his mission and helping to establish the kingdom that he had come to set up on earth.

We must never forget that the Kingdom of God had, in the thought of Jesus, an earthly aspect. It was kingdom that was "at hand" and that was in the midst of men, though it was a kingdom that could not be confined only to earth or to earthly interests.

It is the significance of Jesus that he came to link earth and heaven in human life. The ministry that he began is the ministry that we need today, and the ministry which he invites all who have faith in him to share.

Travellers Will Attend Service

Sunday, Jan. 8 is "Travellers' Sunday" throughout the Dominion of Canada, and the Travellers of the Edmonton district, together with their families and friends, have arranged to attend the morning service at First Baptist church where a section of the church has been reserved for them. The Rev. Chas. G. Stone will preach a suitable sermon, and a real good turnout of travellers is expected.

THIRTY MILES OF GOLD

JOHANNESBURG, S. Africa, Jan. 7—South Africa expects to benefit greatly from a new gold supply which has been discovered by geologists. t is a gold reef, containing as estimated reserve of $1,390,000,000, and extends for a distance of 30 miles. A prospecting company has been formed and options for five years have been obtained.

AN ADEQUATE THEME

There is a love-song which would pervade this world and make this place of shame and horror tremble with its tenderness. An earnest thinker writes thus, "With our technique we could turn this planet into a violin with the four winds as strings if only we had the theme to inspire the artists. Nothing less than God is such a theme."

It is not enough for us to know that that love-song is enshrined in a Book. We must bring that Book within touching distance of the working hands and the everyday life of all mankind.

one to hear. Anemia, Migraine headaches and Meniere's Disease also produce ringing in the ears.

In every case under my direct observation it has been possible to bring about a cure which is complete and permanent. In many instances this may be effected by right diet, which the patient may follow by himself.

Whenever the ear noises are due to high blood pressure or to catarrh a fast from all food for a few days will remove the trouble, temporarily. Abstaining from food will reduce the blood pressure when it is too high or will quickly diminish the catarrh if the cause lies in an excess of mucus around the tympanic bones.

It is interesting to have the blood pressure taken before the fast in order to find whether or not high blood pressure exists. If the blood pressure is not over 140 millimeters, you wa be sure that the trouble is probably produced from chronic catarrh. In either case the fasting and diet treatment will bring about a rapid change, with quick relief from the annoying throbbing.

The fruit fast may be continued for five to eight days, and then the patient begins on a diet free from an excess of starchy foods. If the trouble is purely catarrhal, all fats and oils must be avoided for a considerable period of time. Milk should not be taken and only small amounts of butter. A blood stream which has been capable of producing catarrh will need a rest from all starches and sugars, and only after several months of living on this restricted diet can one expect to be able to return to a well balanced diet which allows a limited amount of starches.

When the ear noises have persisted for some time it may be necessary to continue dieting over a period of a few months but good results will be obtained if the patient will learn to use the right foods in the right way.

the Danubian States, and Manchuria and further conferences are in prospect to discuss not only these, but world economic problems.

But, on the other hand, the passages once forced by international commerce through tariff walls are now being blocked up everywhere. The ramparts of post-war tariffs have risen even higher and are now reinforced by concrete lines of quotas and exchange restrictions so that world trade, once a swelling flood, is becoming a dwindling trickle. That is a portent which it will be idle to deny and folly to ignore.

The world is becoming like a lunatic asylum run by lunatics. Because the earth—stimulated and fertilized by science is giving mankind more than it can consume—then it must consume less than it needs. The war is largely responsible for this state of things. The world is still suffering from concussion and its brain and nerve are not working well. It got a fright from which it has not yet recovered.

In that war, great nations were starved to surrender. So every nation must produce its own food for the future. It is too risky to depend on supplies outside. There were nations deprived of essential goods and machinery because countries that supplied them were too busy manufacturing the equipment and munitions of war. So henceforth they must each set up their own factories and produce at home.

Countries ran short of essential food and material because the foreign ships that used to carry for them were absorbed in the tasks of war. So in the future they must each have their own ships.

President Wilson, mindful of the breach of international right that had led to the war, preached self-determination. That raised from the dead several old nations. Then every nation—the quick and the dead—mindful of the lessons of the war about the peril of too great dependence on others—preached and practised self-containment.

The vast territories, like Russia and America, had some reason behind them in their role of self dependence. But the ambitious little republics of the east and west were swelling and strutting with the same boast. Every nation flaunted statistics of the increase in its home production and the dinimution of its imports from abroad. Everywhere trade gradually vanished as trade balances continued to improve.

All the countries were becoming more self-contained and less and less dependent. The millennium was at hand—not the world millennium but each land with its own little millennium by its own fireside.

But it all went wrong in 1930. The cosy paradises of self-contentment are now crowded to the doors with paupers.

This year the statesmen must undertake the dismaying task of reversing the direction of post-war nationalism. This involves bold and drastic treatment of such questions as disarmament, tariffs, trade restrictions of all kinds, stabilization of exchanges, Japanese aggression in the east, and international indebtedness.

There is an equally important question which has not yet been touched upon in any of these numerous international conferences. It is that of making peace between man and machine. Until this is done there will be chaos, unemployment, unrest, and ultimately revolution. This is pre-eminently an international question. No nation standing alone can adjust hours to production and demand.

ENGINEERS LOOK OVER CARIBOO

VICTORIA, Jan. 7.—Some of the largest mining companies in America have sene engineers into the Cariboo country adjoining Barkerville to stake quartz claims there, according to Andrew Larsen, British Columbia mining engineer, who is here to discuss with the mines department the improvement of roads leading to properties in which he is interested.

"Three of the largest companies in the mining industry, have engineers on the ground now, despite the snow, staking claims around Barkerville," Mr. Larsen declared. "There seems to be no question about the prospects of this old gold camp, and we look for a marked activity when spring comes."

Birth Control Would Mean Race Suicide Say Catholics

Women Are Up in Arms Against Proposed Clinic in Edmonton

LEST there be doubt in anyone's mind regarding the position of the Catholic Women's League on the question of birth control, the following has been contributed by Mrs. Frank J. Conroy, first vice-president of the Edmonton sub-division of the C.W.L. Mrs. Conroy, who is also convener of social service and child welfare for the league, has been doing welfare work in the "Comfort Corner" for almost four years, during which time she has been in touch with many families in all stages of poverty—large families, medium-sized families and small families—and would be the last person in the world to oppose any measure that would mean the alleviation of the sufferings of women provided such alleviation could be accomplished along the lines of Christian morality.

"Women are all agreed that there is still a great deal of unnecessary suffering and hardship being borne by the weaker sex—and forward-thinking women are always on the "qui vive" for ways and means of alleviating this unnecessary suffering. But it must be borne in mind that from the very nature of humanity and from the very nature of our present social and economic system, the human race will always have heavy burdens to carry. Child-bearing and rearing is only one of these burdens. There are worse things! Ask anyone who served in the world war, ask any doctor or nurse, ask anyone in the emergency ward of a hospital."

"More than two hundred women sat for upwards of two hours, at a special Local Council meeting, some days ago, and listened to various speakers who were in favor of a Birth Control Clinic for Edmonton, and strange to say, not one had been asked to give the other side of the question. Yet what amazed me most in the whole amazing proceedings was first, the fluency and seeming sincerity with which a startling number of half-truths were brought forward in support of Birth Control and, secondly the fact that not once during the whole proceedings was the morality of the subject under discussion brought into question, nor was man's responsibility to his Creator and Supreme Ruler so much as mentioned. This was, presumably, a meeting of Christian women, but Christians are those who acknowledge their dependence on God's Providence and who believe in eternal life, and these women, whether they realize it or not, have adopted the Pagan Philosophy of "Eat, drink and be merry, for to-morrow we die." St. Paul says to Christians that they should not be like those who have no hope, and encourages them to bear the tribulations of life, looking for their reward in the next. Christ said, "I came not to bring peace but the sword." What did He mean? Just this; Life is a continuous battle and all of us, men and women, are enlisted. Are we going to ruin or are we going to fight? Heretofore we have been taught to admire and imitate the courage of brave men and women. Are we now going to be asked to admire and imitate the "yellow streak" in undiciplined men and cowardly women?"

MARRIAGE HAS BUT ONE PURPOSE

Marriage has but one purpose, primarily, namely, the propagation of the human race, and when this vital purpose is disregarded, marriage becomes no more than "legalized concubinage." If woman shirks marital responsibilities, then man, who looks to woman to lead the way in morality, will certainly shirk his. Christ did not command that a married woman should have an unlimited number of children. Those who engage in the study of Eugenics claim, however, that, marrying at 20 years of age, a normal woman will have fifteen children by the age of 45. This means, of course, in ideal health conditions.

However, those who are married do not have to make use of marriage at such times as it is most likely to result in pregnancy. Since the time of the ancient Greeks there has been the idea of a "safe" period in married life, and many have made use of this legitimate means for limiting their families. But definite knowledge of this point has been hard to obtain and it is a sad commentary on the indifference of men to women's woes to know that the medical profession is more backward in the study of obstetrics than in any other branch.

However, very recently a book has been published in German containing the findings of two eminent gynecologists, one Dr. Ogimo, famous in Japan for his work in this connection, and Professor Knaus of Austria, who, working independently of one another [illegible] almost simultaneously at the same conclusion, and who insist that there is a "safe" period in married life, and also, that there are other certain times which, while not absolutely proven sterile, are practically so. Can it be that the Providence of God, which allows man to find out other truths of nature from time to time, has chosen this most distressful period in the world's history to enlighten men of good will on this most vexed question? Christ said, "The truth shall make you free." Can this be one of the truths, so long hidden from our blindness, that is going to help make us free? If so, why propogate immoral and dangerous knowledge on so vital a subject? Surely no woman's organization would care to be responsible for a petition to government for permission to disseminate half-baked, pseudo-scientific stuff, that is acknowledged even by its sponsors to be dangerous, inefficient and against the moral law.

If one crime is to be legalized, why not others? There are many people suffering from poverty today. Why not give the poor man permission to steal?

EMPIRES FALL FROM WITHIN

History assures us that the great empires of the world fell, not before attacks from without, but by luxurious disintigration within. That is what is happening to the great British Empire today. Those who should be the leaders in courageous endeavor of all kinds are drawing haughty cloaks of selfishness about them, and thinking only of how they can make this life more cushiony and comfortable. Result, Race Suicide.

No! Birth Control is a two-edged sword, sparing the few and destroying generations. The poor are not poor because they have big families—many large families have been and are, very well off. Women are not weak only through excessive child bearing. Modern dress contributes much to their ills. Wars are not caused by over-populating. There is plenty of room in this old world for everybody if the Golden Rule would be observed by nations as well as big individuals. The crops of the world cannot be consumed because there are not enough people to eat them, and wars are caused chiefly by the greed and ambition of the lucifers of this world, who, having secured wealth, look about for fresh fields to conquer. They want to be supreme, with crushed humanity on its knees before them.

Another argument advanced for Birth Control was the alleged illegal sale of contraceptives. If there is such an alarming amount of this law-breaking then why is the law not better inforced?

If some poor foreigner tries to make the odd dollar by selling liquor to his friends the whole police force is out to "get" him while the "snakes in the grass" who are teaching our young people how to be immoral and "get away with it" are left "unscotched."

Another argument is that individuals are practicing Birth Control. Yes, and individuals are murdering and stealing and setting fires to property for insurance and cheating and lying and breaking every other commandment. Does this mean that we should petition government to legalize these things. Absurd! To pass such a measure would be to give public approval to what we all know is against the law of God. Surely as Christian women we cannot do this?

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

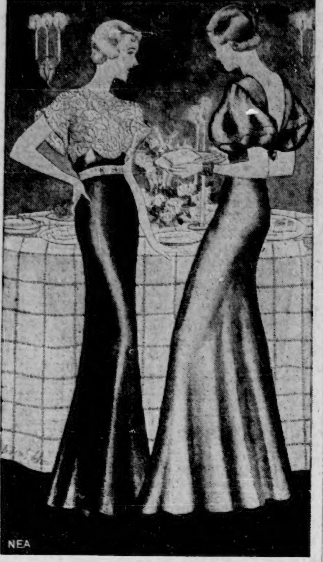
Sunday Supper Frock



By JOAN SAVOY

Sunday night supper dresses are the darlings of this season's crop of clothes. You can wear them anywhere where your hostess says, "Don't dress" but doesn't mean it!

They have a charming dignity yet informality about them that makes it a pleasure to don them.

There are three noticeable fashion facts they all have in common, no matter what color you pick, what fabric or what touches of trim.

They are all long, to ankle or floor. They all have some kind of attractive sleeves, more often short than long. They all have the high neckline in front, even when they drop away to a deep V in the back.

You can indulge your preference for red, if you want to. Or you can have one of the new black dresses or a black and white combination or black with a metal cloth top. Of course there are greens and greens and blue and all kinds of other color combinations. I merely mention the ones that have the largest number of buyers.

If you do want red, a lovely ruby colored velvet dress (right) is cut on princess lines, with puff sleeves trimmed with just that glitter glamorous things ask, a band of twinkling rhinestones. It has a low-cut square back and a high-cut square front to its neckline. The little belt of the material fastens in the back in a flat bow.

If you prefer a black-white combination, black velvet joins a novelty white lace (left) to make a stunning Sunday night frock. The lace is a very large pattern, all outlined in silver so that it gives the effect of a rich brocade, from a distance. This has simple wide sleeves, and a demure round neck, fastening in the back with a green button, like the two on the peau d'ange belt.

Social-Personal

TO be back in Sing Sing" was no hardship for the jolly crowd who attended the Sing Sing dance put on by the members of the Racketeers' club in Westmount Hall on Friday evening. The orchestra played from behind prison bars and the big sign "Sing Sing" was constant reminder that this was a prison dance. In the intermission Miss Marie Jordan and Miss Lorace Kirk, dressed in convicts' stripes, sang "Eleven more months and ten more days," and delighted the guests with tap dance numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Vance, Mr. and Mrs. V. Shinners were patrons of the occasion, and the members of the club who arranged the dance are Miss Margaret Rae, president; Miss Patricia Vance, Miss Elsie Clourton, Miss Lillian Event, Miss Evelyn Shannon, Miss Louise Jones, Miss Olga Chepil, Miss Kathleen Woywitka, Miss Elaine Malton.

President's Wife To Open Canteens For Girls in Need

Prominent Women Will be Hostesses to Those Out of Work

By LORENA A. HOCKOK
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, as wife of the assistant secretary of the United States navy, did volunteer work in a canteen in Washington during the Great War, is going to bring back to New York the wartime canteen. Instead of being opened for soldier boys, however, Mrs. Roosevelt's canteens are going to be established for women—women without jobs.

Before leaving for Northampton, Mass., to attend the funeral of Calvin Coolidge, the wife of the now president-elect of the United States entertained at her New York home a group of women to whom she explained her idea, and preliminary plans were laid. She promised to raise herself enough money to open two places and keep them running for two or three weeks.

At the luncheon were Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer, Miss Fannie Hurst, writer, Miss Jean Dixon, actress, Miss Rose Schneiderman, president of the Women's Trade Union League, and a number of other women representing various groups.

"I have been told that in New Aork at the present time as many as six girls will be living in one room, only one of them working. The other five tramp the streets all day, looking for jobs," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

"What we want to do is to provide places—comfortable, attractive places—where they can go and rest, have something to eat, and find someone to talk to. We probably shan't be able to find jobs for many of them, but that won't be our chief purpose. What we want to do is to cheer them up a little and do for them whatever we can.

At each canteen, according to present plans, volunteer hostesses will work in shifts, and, after the first two or three weeks, the hostesses will work in shifts, and, after the first two or three weeks, the hostesses may finance, in part at least, the canteens."

Club Activities

KNOX UNITED W. A.

Tentative plans for the work of the coming year were made at the annual meeting of Knox United W. A. in the church Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. W. C. Short, was in the chair. The reports of the different departments were very gratifying. The treasurer, Mrs. B. W. Green, reported $1,611.97 raised. The most important project undertaken during the year was the replacement of the church windows. The new windows are beautiful reproductions of famous paintings. They are the work of the Edmonton artist, Mrs. Mortimer.

Mrs. N. C. Willson, recording secretary, reviewed the interesting programs of the ten meetings held. Much credit was given Mrs. W. C. Stuart for their arrangement.

The Flower Guild, under the convenership of Mrs. Chas. E. Shaw has added much to the enjoyment of the services, by the tasteful decorations of the church. Mrs. Shaw also supervised landscaping the church grounds.

Mrs. J. B. Tuck and the members of the social committee have arranged a number of affairs. Mrs. Rae's group served tea at the close.

Mrs. William Short presided and it was decided that the monthly meetings should be changed from the first Friday to the third Monday of each month.

Mrs. J. C. Wicks, convener of the agriculture committee, will speak on the growing of raspberries at the February meeting and two other members will tell of their experiences in cultivating new kinds of flowers. Three new members, Mrs. McCartney, Mrs. Griswold and Mrs. Deacon were welcomed into the institute last evening.

The Passing Show

By J. S. Cowper

Now that South Africa, the largest producer of gold in the world, has rejected the gold standard for its national currency, Canadians are asking if Canada would not act wisely to take similar action. South Africa's action has revived the demand that the Canadian dollar be tied to the British pound.

With Calgary refusing to discharge its bonds in gold; with Ottawa refusing to supply Calgary with gold at par; with the business world calling out for inflation, Sir Thomas White, former Finance Minister, and Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal, issuing public statements warning against any depreciation of the dollar, it is easily seen that there are conflicting interests at issue over the question of Canada's currency. It isn't even clear whether we're on the gold standard or not. We're in the position of the army of that famous Duke of York in the nursery rhyme who marched his men to the top of the hill and marched them down again:

And when they were up they were up,
And when they were down they were down,
But when they were in the middle of the hill
They were neither up nor down.

* * *

Let us look at the situation. First let us see the position of the Canadian wheat grower.

The wheat grower sells his product on the basis of competitive prices set on the Liverpool Corn Exchange. He sells in competition with his brother in Australia or his rival in Argentina.

Argentina and Australia, like England have inflated their currencies to meet post-war conditions. This means that their currencies sell at low prices on the New York exchange—very much below that of the Canadian dollar which is "pegged" from time to time by gold shipments. Australia's pound sells below that of Britain. It takes 125 Australian pounds to buy 100 British pounds.

See what happens when a British broker buys £100 worth of imported wheat.

If it is Australian wheat, the 100 British pounds are turned into 125 Australian pounds. The Australian grower gets £125.

If it is Argentina wheat, the 100 British pounds are turned into pesos. At 42 pesos to the pound the Argentina grower gets the equivalent of £115 at par.

If it is Canadian wheat, the 100 British pounds are turned into Canadian dollars. With the Canadian dollar at $3.76, the Canadian grower receives roughly £77 pounds at par.

By the inflation of Australian currency (or the depreciation of the Australian pound, to express it in another way) the Australian grower gets 80 cents a bushel for his wheat when the Canadian grower gets but 50. When it comes to paying rent, taxes, mortgage, wages and domestic debts, the Australian wheat grower has the benefit of 80 cent wheat.

Depreciation of the Canadian dollar down to the level of the British pound would add nearly 30 per cent to the domestic value of Canadian wheat.

* * *

And now for the other side of the story. Canada, unfortunately for us today, has done most of her financing in New York, instead of in London. Had Calgary done its financing in London instead of in New York, it would not be worrying today about gold premiums. It would be in the happy position of New Westminster, B.C., which is saving ed to help the Order, 11 other families and 26 children were privileged to share Christmas. 4 private individuals were also cared for, in addition, by the Florence Nightingale W.A.

One class and one demonstration was given to 40 nurses at the Royal Alexandra Hospital, and a lesson in home nursing was taught to 19 girls in a C.G.I.T. class. A dinner party given by the Lady Aberdeen chapter I.O.D.E., was attended and an informal talk on V.O.N. work given. Miss Shipman spoke of the visit of Miss Mary McCuaig, Western Supervisor of the V.O.N., to Edmonton this week. Although Miss McCuaig was on holidays much help was given the branch here when she met with them to discuss the work and present problems.

CHRISTMAS HAMPERS

In telling of the activities of the Florence Nightingale Auxiliary, Mrs. W. A. Griesbach mentioned the work done in preparing and distributing the hampers and told of the content of the hampers. She acknowledged gifts and donations, mentioning the $10 given by the clerks of Woolworth's to buy toys for the children.

The annual meeting will be held this month at the home of Mrs. Morton Hall and it is also planned that a sale of hot dogs be held in the market one Saturday, Mrs. Griesbach reported.

Some of the letters of thanks which the Auxiliary received in grateful acknowledgment of those who received their help at Christmas were read. All sincerely expressed the heartfelt thanks for the happiness brought through the thoughtfulness of the members. Some letters were pathetic. "It would have been a dark Christmas . . . we don't know how to say thanks to you all."

Following the reports nominations were received for officers in the V.O.N. for the coming year. Mrs. Orr is convener of nominations assisted by Mrs. A. C. Grant and Mrs. William Smith. Elections will be held at the annual meeting on Wednesday, January 25 at Government House. Mrs. A. R. Osborn will be the speaker.

Westmount Community League held their regular whist drive and dance Saturday evening when 28 tables were in play. The winners at cards were: Mrs. A. L. Wayne, Miss Edith Havenor, Mrs. R. Lamb, Mrs. L. Wisemer, Mr. H. Hennessey, Mr. G. Kruger, Mr. J. Clancy, and Mr. Tom Ridge. The ladies' check room prize went to Mrs. Grover and the door prize to Mrs. H. W. Publicover. A turkey draw was won by Mr. J. J. Edwards. An exhibition of tap dancing by Mr. Glen Dagg was enjoyed by all. Mr. J. B. Gillies, president of Community League, extended New Year's greetings to everybody present.

PLAYMATE

"Let's go out and sled-ride," lisped Bobby to his friend.

"I don't want to sled ride," declared Lester. "I want to fix this train. Mine's broken. Come on, Bobby, you hold this wheel and I'll play train and I'll be engineer."

"Let's go out now."

"But it's my turn to be engineer. I want to play this now."

"Oh, that old train's no fun. You said you wanted to go out, didn't you? You go on over and get my sled and I'll look at this book."

Bobby went and got on his things and trudged over to his friend's back porch. Then he bumped his own down the back steps.

"Tome on," he called. "It's all weady."

Lester came out through the kitchen, book in hand. "Say, Bob, I think it's too cold. I want to see these pictures. Come on in and we'll read."

"I tan't wead. And I know all those pictures. You said you'd tome out."

"Oh—all right. Get your own way, baby! I'll be out in a few minutes. You wait."

Bobby kicked around for a long time. Billy Jones called to him to go along to the hill. He had his big sled.

"I tan't. I'm waiting for Lester. He's in my house."

Finally he went in. Lester was playing the radio.

"Ain't you tomin'? I've been waitin' an' waitin'."

"Gee, Bob, but you're a baby. You have to have everything your own way, don't you?"

"He's up at the hill. I saw him," said Bobby.

Lester threw himself on his sled and scooted across lots to the street. Bobby being little was away behind his friend.

"Hurry up, slow poke! I can't wait all day. And when we get to the hill, don't be pestering Bill and me for rides. I'm going with him."

At the hill Lester deserted his little friend and he and Billy had one swift coast after another. But he stopped once long enough to say, "Bobby, you'd better not go on the track. Little boys are likely to get bumped. There's your big sister. You'd better stay with her."

Bobby told his sister. "Come on, get on my sled," she said, "and I'll pull you home. I have to do an errand."

The next day Lester came in.

"What are you doing, Bobby? Come on and let's play with your soldiers."

But Bobby's mother interposed. "Lester, Bobby likes you, but you take advantage of him. Partly because you are selfish. He is miserable all day long. He's asked a little boy over today who is his own age and who has some idea about other people's rights. I think you are old enough to understand what I mean. I'll be glad to talk to your mother about it."

But she did not have to. Lester did not tell. A week later he came back and acted like a gentleman. He had gotten the talking-to he needed.

MARRIAGE AND BUSINESS DITTO

DEAR MISS DIX.—We are a bridal couple, very much in love with each other and blissfully happy and we want to stay that way. Will you please give us a plan whereby we may keep as much in love with each other as we are now. We are determined to make our marriage a success.

TWO LOVERS.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:

If you are really determined to make your marriage a success and have the strength and grit to hold to that resolution, you can do it. I am firmly convinced that any man and woman who will put as much intelligence and effort into trying to make a go of their marriage as they do into trying to make a success of their business will never fail.

You know what it takes to make a success in a business. It takes patience. It takes sticking to it. It takes self-control. It takes tact. Apply these to marriage and they will draw down just as good dividends as they would in any profession or any commercial enterprise.

So the first piece of advice that I give you is to look upon your marriage as a business in which you have invested everything you have and on whose prosperity your whole future depends. Don't get discouraged when you discover that it isn't a get-rich-quick concern, that it doesn't make you a millionaire in a day. Don't throw it up and run off to the divorce court when you find out that there are a thousand difficulties in it that you never foresaw.

Just dig in and make up your mind to see it through. Try to find out where you are making mistakes and correct them. Have patience with each other's little faults. Remember you are both starting in on a job at which you are amateurs and that you have got to learn by experience how to be a good husband and wife.

Use as much self-control in dealing with each other as you would with your bosses if you were employees or as you would with customers if you were running your own shop. If you had a good situation you would handle your boss with gloves. You wouldn't think of criticizing him or telling him of his faults or of talking back to him if you happened to feel peevish or nervous. Use the same tactics with each other and you will never have the little daily spats that kill love between so many husbands and wives.

Settle the money question once and for all so that it will not be a perpetual bone of contention in your household. Every wife should have a definite allowance given her on which to run the house and another for her own personal use. Otherwise she cannot manage her affairs intelligently and economically. There is nothing that burns a woman up with such a sense of humiliation and injustice as having to go like a beggar to her husband for the money she earns by her services in the home and nothing will slay her affection for a man quicker than for him to be a tightwad.

Be generous. Be thrifty. Make it a cast-iron rule to put away something every month for the rainy day that is sure to come, but do not deny yourself all pleasures. All that we get out of life is what we get as we go along.

Don't argue. A home in which all disputations are barred is a happy and a peaceful one. Be big enough and broad enough to grant each other the right to think and believe as each chooses. Do not try to make each other over. By the time people are old enough to marry they have settled into their own personal habits and you interfere with these at your peril.

Cultivate each other's society. Take an interest in each other's interest. It is fatally easy for husband and wives to get out of step with each other unless they make a definite effort to keep chums. Play together. Work together. Go out together. Talk together. Or else you become like those couples who at middle age are such strangers that they haven't a word to say to each other.

Don't quarrel. You can keep from doing that if you really want to do so. Give the soft answer that turns away wrath. That is better than standing up for your rights and, incidentally, it is the best way to get them. Be tender and affectionate and considerate to each other and you will make your marriage a success and love each other better on your golden wedding day than you do now.

DOROTHY DIX.

Strength Failed

Hamilton, Ont.—"When one of my babies was four months old my strength failed. I was not able to eat anything, had dizzy sick-headaches, developed quinsy sore throat and felt miserable all over—was confined to bed," said Mrs. J. Dunsmuir of 294 Beach Road. "I started using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and after a few doses there was a big improvement in my condition and when I had completed the third bottle I certainly felt fine and strong again."

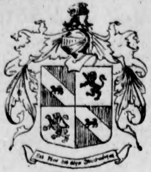
Who Are You?



Davies

This surname is of Welsh origin and is very closely allied with the name Davis—both being a corruption of the personal name David. The first recorded mention of the surname appears in 1581, when one Robert ap David (son of David) assumed the name Davies as his family cognomen. It is said that in ancient Wales and England the names Davis and Davies combined far outnumbered those of Smith, Brown, Jones, Williams or Taylor.

Among the early immigrants bearing this name to come to the New England States was Humphrey Davies, a merchant, and son of Sir John Davies, of London. He arrived in Boston in 1665.

The coat of arms here shown is accredited to John Davies, who settled in Litchfield, Conn., in 1735. He was a descendant of John Davies "the elder," of England, and was born in Kington Parish, County Hereford, in 1680.

The lion rampant and passant as displayed on the arms signifies great physical strength and deathless courage, and are no doubt shown on the coat armor in commemoration of deeds of valor and heroism executed by warriors and crusaders in the ancient days of the family.

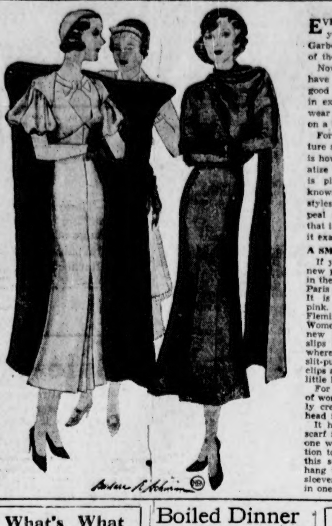
Make Your Clothes to Fit Your Type



By JOAN SAVOY

EVERY woman has felt that yearning to appear just like Garbo or some other favorite star of the silver screen.

Now that motion picture stars have achieved a practical sense of good dress and their costumes are in excellent taste, it is possible to wear Hollywood fashions and take on a bit of glamor.

For there is one thing motion picture stars know, one and all. That is how to pick costumes that dramatize their personalities. If anyone is playing an ingenue part she knows the value of simple, young styles. Sophisticates know the appeal of a seemingly simple dress that is so intricate nobody can copy it exactly.

A SMART INGENUE FROCK

If you are the ingenue type, this new peblo-sheer crepe frock (left), in the latest "dirty pink" shade that Paris sponsors, will appeal to you. It is an exquisite ashes-of-roses pink. It is a gown worn by Susan Fleming in "He Learned About Women" and has something brand new in its slashed neckline and slips both at the front and out where the shoulder line meets the slit-puffed sleeves. The two centre clips at the throat are really a cute little buckle that snaps shut.

For the more sophisticated type of women this goldleaf rough crinkly crepe, worn by Tallulah Bankhead in "Faithless," will appeal.

It has a unique collar, made in scarf fashion, with the scarf cut in one with half the blouse. In addition to draping to make the collar, this scarf crosses the shoulder to hang to the hemline behind. The sleeves are tight and long and cut in one with the waist.

Question — I'm having a few friends to dinner toward the end of this month. I've invited a number of others to play bridge later in the evening—about five tables altogether. What is the proper form for sending visiting-card bridge invitations? Are refreshments served? At what time?

Answer—Mail your card-invitations at least two weeks in advance of the selected date. Here is the form:

Question—When a friend is asked to play the organ at a church wedding, should a fee be offered to him? Should the organist's wife be invited to the wedding? Grace.

Answer—A fee should never be "offered." If the organist is a professional, the regular charge can be ascertained and a check for the amount may be mailed. Then if the musician does not care to accept remuneration from a friend, it is an easy matter for him to return the check with an explanatory note. When an amateur musician plays the organ he does not expect, and might resent, payment for his services. If the organist is to receive an invitation his wife should be included. It is bad form to invite a husband without his wife, or a wife without her husband.

Boiled Dinner Is Economical

Served Piping Hot, Boiled Meat and Vegetables Most Appetizing

By SISTER MARY

There is no dinner that is more economical and nourishing than the old-fashioned traditional New England "boiled dinner." Carefully prepared and attractively served, this simple meal will please the most fastidious.

Arrange the vegetables around the meat on a large platter in such a way that the vegetables form a garnish. Be careful, too, that the vegetables are not over-cooked and broken and mushy when sent to the table. Everything should be piping hot. The platter and dinner plates heated before using.

Our great-grandmothers served their boiled dinners in large, deep chop-plate-like dishes which were made especially for this purpose.

The deep dish was supposed to hold heat and keep the meal and vegetables hot for second and third "helpings."

Three or four pounds corned beef, 6 medium sized potatoes, 1 small head cabbage, 3 or 4 parsnips, 4 carrots.

Rince meat in cold water. Put into kettle with enough cold water to more than cover meat. Bring to the boiling point and skim thoroughly. Simmer for three hours. Remove meat from broth and add parsnips, scrapped and cut halves or quarters. Cook fifteen minutes and add carrots scrapped and cut halves. Cook ten minutes and add potatoes pared. Cook ten minutes and add cabbage cut in eights. Cook twenty minutes or until all the vegetables are tender. Drain from broth and serve meat and vegetables on a big hot platter.

Salt pork and corned beef were the popular meats for New England housewives, but ham or fresh beef can be chosen if preferred. More nourishment is provided from fresh beef than from corned beef.

A boiled dinner suggests an excellent way to use up the end of a ham, too. The meat gives an unusual and appetizing flavor to common vegetables that are none too popular in the American home. Be sure to cook the vegetables uncovered after the cabbage is added in order to avoid the unpleasant ordor through the house.

Tomorrow's Menu

THE TINYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN — Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

Old Freezy stood back of the sled and kept it moving on ahead. "How do you make it go so fast?" asked Scouty, with a smile.

"We're going many miles an hour and that must take a lot of power. I'll gladly lend a hand, sir, if you need it after while."

"Oh, no!" the ice and snow man said. "You sit and have your fun, instead. This is no work for me at all. You see, I'm very strong.

"I push with one foot on the ice. "I hold my head down by by knees and save my face from quite a breeze. This is one of the nicest things that we have ever done."

* * *

All of a sudden Freezy cried, "We're due for trouble on this ride. Just look ahead and you will see a great big bank of snow.

"We're moving onward with such force that it's too late to change our course. Right into that big mass of white is where we're bound to go."

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

That keeps us sailing on real nice. As long as I don't get tired out we'll travel right along."

* * *

Soon afterwards they reached a hill, and Freezy said, "Now for a thrill. When going down I need not push. I'll take a little rest.

"You Tinymites must hang on tight. Then everything will be all right. I'll keep the slep from tipping o'er. At least, Ill do my best."

The hill was steep as it could be and shortly Duncy shouted, "Whee! This almost takes my breath away, but it is lots of fun.

The Tines didn't say a word, though frightened by what they had heard. And then they hit the snow bank and their sled whirled 'round and 'round.

The whole bunch sailed out into space, but landed in a ncie, soft place. Old Freezy laughed and cried, "Hurray! We all are safe and sound."

READERS' BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Muddy Skin; Poor Posture

DEAR MISS LEEDS—(1) I am 16 years old, 52¾ inches tall and weigh 104 pounds. How can I gain weight? (2) My complexion is very bad. It breaks out in pimples and looks muddy. I am taking a patent medicine tonic for it. It that any good? I am going to tell you all my troubles, so just wait, I haven't started yet. (3) My hips are not large, but the lower part of my back seems too prominent so that my skirts don't hang right. How can I correct this? (4) My ankles are too large, 8½ inches, and my bust is too small, 31 inches. I wear 6 AA shoes. (5) What is a good powder base?

MIXED UP.

Answer—(1) Havn't you made a mistake in giving your height? Fifty-two inches is very short for a girl of your age, but if you are really that height your present weight is considerably above the average. A girl of your age who is sixty-three (63) inches tall should weigh about 117 pounds. To gain weight you must first make sure that there is nothing wrong with your general health, that is, no organic or functional trouble. Have a doctor pass upon this point. Have your teeth and eyes examined also. Then revise your diet, sleep at least nine hours a night, be out in the fresh air as much as you can and exercise moderately. You may have my free leaflet on "How to Gain Weight" that outlines diets and exercises if you will write for it and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

(2) Not for your homplexion. Don't take patent medirines unless your doctor orders them. A muddy, pimply skin is often due to wrong diet and constipation. You must be sure to eat plenty of fresh fruit, especially citrus fruit, and also salads and cooked green vegetables. Drink eight glassfuls of water during the day between meals. Build up your weight and general health. Many of my readers have found the following skin lotion very helpful for pimples: 1 dram sulphate of zinc, 1 dram sulphuretted potash and 4 ounces rose water. Have your druggist mix it for you and use the lotion several times a day.

(3) This problem is due to incorrect posture mainly. By holding your figure as tall as you can with spine stretched, abdomen in, chest out and chin level you can improve your figure at once. I think you would also be interested in having a copy of my free leaflet "The Body Beautiful," that tells how to correct common posture defects. Any reader may have a copy who will send a request for it accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(4) Large ankle bones cannot be reduced in size, but fat ankles can be made slimmer by toe pointing and rotation of the foot at the ankle. Such exercises must be done regularly for at least five minutes a day. Your bust measures will increase as you grow older if you are careful to avoid underweight and a slouching posture. Cultivate the habit of deep breathing. Arm flinging exercises are good for flat chests and so is singing. Remember that you are still immature and should not expect to have a perfect womanly figure for a number of years.

(5) Your skin will clear up sooner if you use no make-up for the time being. Various skin lotions, vanishing cream and cold creams are used as powder bases.

LOIS LEEDS.

If you would like to have your household to run smoothly make sure that you have plenty of coat hangers, plenty of ash trays, ice cubes always available in the refrigerator, and soaps, tooth paste, and cleansing tissues around.

Gladys Warns Reducers Of Too Speedy Methods

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty"

I suppose you've all seen some of the recent new photographs of Clara Bow, the latest of the cinema stars to pull a screen comeback. And did you observe how much more slender the new Clara is? La Bow has, indeed, lost a great deal of weight. And judging from her appearance, it was through a safe and sane method of reduction only that she accomplished this. For her figure has all the "it" curves and alluring contours that it originally wrinkles, or harrgardness in her face to reflect an unsafe reduction method.

Gladys Glad

That's the trouble with most women. When they become overweight they want to reduce speedily. And so they choose the quickest reduction method they can find, regardless of its safety.

An unhealthy and too-speedy reduction method always reflects in the face. Before reduction, the facial contours are padded and rounded out by layers of fat. Then, when a speedy reduction method is entered upon, these layers of fat are abruptly dissolved. As a result, the skin which had stretched to accommodate the increasing bulk beneatn its surface, hasn't time to adjust itself to the change of contour. And so it sages in wrinkled looseness, giving a haggard and aged appearance to the face.

It is perfectly possible to preserve the youthful contours of the face while reducing. But only a well-planned reduction method should be employed, such as the excellent one outlined in my "New Figure" booklet. If such a routine is followed, no girl should lose beauty with weight:

First, use a good nourishing cream on your face nightly. Coco butter is a very good one. Warm it to an oil and pat it into your skin nightly before retiring.

Second, do not neglect your water intake. Consume at least 8 to10 glasses of water a day, so that your tissues do not shrivel through lack of fluid.

Third, make use of a good astringent or bracing lotion to stimulate the circulation in your face, and to keep your facial contours firm and smooth.

Minute Make-Ups

By V. V.

Do you want to apply rouge so that it is natural looking and also lasts for hours, if not through the entire day? First select a good paste or cream rouge and a foundation cream or liquid. Rub the foundation cream on one cheek, then immediately apply the rouge so that it melts into the skin. Do one cheek at a time first with the foundation treatment and then with the rouge. Lastly, powder.

Tomorrow—Manicure.

TOOK NINE YEARS OFF HER AGE

To Help Her Get a Job

Keeps Young with Kruschen

When she wanted a new position, this woman knew her 52 years would spoil her chances. So she gave her age as 43. They said she didn't look as old as that—and gave her the job! She tells the whole story in this letter:— "Four years ago I lost my husband, and had to earn my own living as a housekeeper. Two years ago I had acute indigestion, and felt so tired and depressed. I could not keep bright, and everything seemed a burden. I took Kruschen Salts, and after three months I was a different woman. I took a position at this address recently, giving my age as 43, and they said they didn't think I was that age. I owe my good health and brightness and courage to carry on entirely to Kruschen Salts."—L. W.

The reason why Kruschen puts you right, and keeps you right, is because each little tasteless pinch is a full day's supply of six mineral salts that your inside must have—salts Nature would see you got if you led a healthy, active life in the open. These vital salts restore proper activity to the liver and kidneys, so that every particle of poisonous waste matter is expelled from the system. The blood is thus cleansed and refreshed and sent coursing to every fibre of your body. You grow steadily fitter, day after day, until you feel fit to the finger-tips with a tingling vitality.

Chinese Leader Is Accused Plotting Gen. Muto's Death

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Jan. 7—Headquarters of General Nobuyoshi Muto, Japan's supreme military and diplomatic representative in Manchuria, announced today an explanation of the Sino-Japanese Shanhaikwan conflicts, linking with it an alleged plot financed by Marshall Chang Hsiago-Liang, north China supreme commander, to assassinate General Muto and other Japanese Manchukuo leaders.

The headquarters statement said Japanese guards arrested a Korean, Sunki Gyo, in Tientsin, as the result of confessions of two Koreans seized at Changchun two weeks ago, charged with plotting General Muto's assassination.

While Japanese were transporting Gyo to Changchun, they said Chinese attempted either to kill or rescue the prisoner to suppress his alleged evidence.

On the night of January 1, the Chinese were said to have attempted to bomb the Japanese treaty guard headquarters at Shanhaikwan, believing Gyo was in custody there, while en route from Tientsin to Changchun. The Japanese said bombing of the headquarters produced the pitched battle at Shanhaikwan this week which ended with Japanese occupation of the Chinese city.

Immigrant Hindu Is Now Timber Baron Of British Columbia

From Small Beginning He Now Commands Big Foreign Orders

VICTORIA, Jan. 7.—A poor immigrant from India to this country shortly before the war, Nayo Singh, took to lumbering, built up his own mill from a small beginning and now the depression has swept him into the position of being a dominant figure in the lumbering industry of Vancouver Island. Through foreign contracts he has established, and through economies in operation, he alone of all the lumber barons here has been able to remain in the lumber export field.

To fill foreign orders, the big lumber mill at Nayo in the Cowichan district of Vancouver Island, and the accompanying logging operations, which have been closed down since 1930, will re-open on March 15, it was announced today by Nayo Singh, owner.

This plant will operate in addition to the Nayo Singh plant at Kapoor, thirty five miles from Victoria, where 100 men are now employed, thirty of them being white men with families. The whole plant there, wiped out by fire some time ago, has been reconstructed during the last few months and is now turning out 85,000 to 90,000 feet of lumber a day.

A governmental school has been opened at Kapoor to take care of the children in the community.

FIRST FLIGHT EDMONTON-FORT McMURRAY By Canadian Airways

Owing to bad weather conditions, there was some delay with the first flights, with the new semi-official airmail stamps of Canadian Airways Limited, which had been announced for 29th and 30th December. The northbound trip was made on 30th December and mail for the southbound flight was postmarked and handed over to the company on 31st December but the plane could not take off until 3rd January, Tuesday last.

A few more than 400 letters were carried either way and these will probably catalogue around $3.00 each, so our members were fortunate in acquiring them through the source suggested at minimum cost.

Collectors in the U.S.A., especially are always interested in Canadian flights as they are comparatively scarce, owing to the fewer routes being opened up. The U.S.A. airmail collector has much more material to acquire from the network of airmail routes in that country.

The non-collector of airmail covers will find they are well worth picking up as future exchange material with the airmail fan, who may still have the old lot of stamps tucked away.

KING GEORGE'S STAMP COLLECTION BELONGS TO THE EMPIRE

It has been said that King George has made his famous collection of stamps of the British Empire an heirloom in the British Royal Family but his Majesty regards the collection as belonging to the Empire; not to himself.

All stamps in this collection have been purchased by agents in the open stamp market and they are housed in nearly four hundred special red leather volumes. Only once has a stamp been sold at a profit, which was during the war when the Red Cross needed funds. A rarity was taken from the collection and offered at auction, realizing nearly $12,000 for that cause.

STAMPS OF BRITISH GUIANA

The stamps ofthis British colony in South America have always been popular and, with exception of pictorial issues of 1898 and the early type-set rarities of 1850, 1852, 1856 and 1862, the "ship type" was in general use until the 1913 issue, when the ship was embodied in a design which also carried the head of King George in a small medalion. The 1c value of of the 1889 issue is pictured today.

There have been many provisional issues and the 1856 provisional is valued at $50,000—possibly the rarest stamp in the world.

The high value, generally, are scarce or rare and bring a good price but there are sufficient of the medium low priced items to make an interesting showing in any collection.

Stamps for official use (regular issues overprinted with the word "official") were issued in 1875 and 1877 but they are not now used. About two hundred and fifty major varieties have been issued and a small fortune is required to complete this country to any extent.

EXPECT MANY FORTY-NINERS AT GATHERING

Edmonton Regiment Holding Anniversary Reunion at Macdonald

Men from many parts of Northern Alberta who fought in France and Flanders with the 49th Battalion, the Edmonton Regiment, will convene at the Macdonald hotel at 7 p.m. on Saturday and to the stirring and welcome strains of "Cook-House Door" and "Hot Potatoes" will line up and take part in the annual banquet and get-together of the 49th. Battalion Association.

The occasion will be the 17th anniversary of the formation of the battalion, this momentous gathering always being held on the Saturday closest to the actual date upon which mobilization commenced.

From all accounts this will be one of the most successful and most largely attended 49th reunions.

MANY SERVED

Nearly 6,000 men from Edmonton and surrounding territory served with the famous Edmonton fighting unit in the war.

From the heights of the Passchendaele Ridge and the cellars of Hooge in the north, to the Roye road in the south and from Arras, through Cambrai, Douai and Valenciennes to Mons, the 49th battalion wrote its name and Edmonton's name in shining letters in some of the most glorious feats of arms in military history.

And not only will there be present members of the 49th. Invitations have been extended to all who served with those other immortal battalions of the 7th Canadian Infantry Brigade with the 49th, namely the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the 42nd Royal Highlanders of Canada.

NOTED OFFICERS

Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C., original officer commanding the battalion, will preside, while sitting close to him will be Lieut. Col. L. C. Harris, V.D., officer commanding the perpetuating militia battalion and original medical officer of the battalion and others well known in the battalion.

In addition to the banquet, there will be a series of items of entertainment as well as the distribution of copies of "The Forty Niner" the regimental magazine, publication of which was commenced in France and which has been continued since by the association. Those in charge of arrangements are confident, that the banquet will be crowned with success from first to last.

KINSMEN STAGE ANNUAL DINNER FRIDAY NIGHT

New Officers Installed at Banquet and Dance at Macdonald

Edmonton Kinsmen gathered in the Palm Room of the Macdonald hotel Friday night to celebrate one of the club's big events of the year—the installation of the new officers. Friday was also made a "ladies' night," and was featured by a banquet and dance.

W. L. Boothe, past president of the Kinsmen Club, presided over the gathering in the earlier part of the evening, handing over the gavel to the new president, M. B. McColl, later in the evening.

Ald. C. L. Gibbs was the special speaker, and took as the subject of his address the value of technical organization in modern business.

In a brief speech, Mr. Boothe complimented the executive of the club for the co-operation given during 1932, which he termed a successful year. He hoped for success in 1933.

BETTER THAN 1932

Addressing the new officers, President McColl said he expected the new year would be even better than the one just past. He urged all members of tse organization to give close co-operation during 1933.

New officers are: M. B. McColl, president; C. Hamly, vice-president; H. H. Doucette, secretary; C. Halliday, assistant secretary; M. Plunkett, treasurer; Norman McLeod, Dr. E. Boomer and H. Cooper, directors.

The 1932 executive was composed of the following: W. L. Boothe, president; M. B. McColl, vice president; C. Hamly, Ken Duggan and Gordon Butler, directors. The secretary, assitant secretary and treasurer were the same as those holding office again this year.

CLUB LAUDED

Clarence Richards, founder of the Edmonton Kinsmen Club, acted as installing official. He lauded the club for the progress it had made during the eight years of its existence here.

Mr. and Mrs. Boothe were presented with gifts as a token of the Kinsmens' appreciation of the past president's efforts on behalf of the organization during the past year.

Addressing the gathering, Ald. Gibbs traced the advance of civilization down through the ages, stressing the fact that technically-trained men had given more to the world than kings, military leaders or politicians.

ON HIGHER PINNACLE

Through technical organization, he believed modern business would be improved and placed on a higher pinnacle than ever before in the history of the world.

Representatives of the various service clubs in the city were present at the gathering.

The club was entertained by Miss Eleanor Agnew, violinist, and Miss Zelma Moyes, pianist, both of whom received hearty applause for their artistic interpretation and rendition of the numbers played.

Two Months On Snowshoes Is Plan Of Edmontonians

They are going by car to Burtonsville, 100 miles up the Saskatchewan river from Edmonton, and will then go 2 5miles southwest by sleigh. Here they will fashion a toboggan which will be hauled by the two big police dogs that they are taking with them. On this will be carried their tepee, bed-rolls and grub. They will hten travel leisurely up the valley of the Brazeau river, camping wherever and whenever they feel like it.

Both men are experienced outdoorsmen. Wilson knows the Brazeau country well as a result of a number of canoe trips. Harcourt prospected at Great Bear lake last summer.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Do you think that love is the greatest thing in the world?

Fritz Kreisler, world's leading violinist, who has won every triumph known to the concert platform, has arrived in the United States from Vienna for a concert tour. His wife remained in Vienna, unable to make the trip due to illness. Fritz was lonesome and in an interview said, "Love is above all else, even the career of an artist or a musician."

Some think money the greatest thing in the world others prefer power; still others service to humanity, while literature and other factors in life are considered by many to be the most important.

The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter set out to make a few inquiries on his own behalf, with the following results:

VERNON HAYWARD, student: You certainly picked a real authority when you picked me. Why certainly, love is the greatest thing in the world. You are born with it; live with it and die for it. One thing, though, that I cannot understand, is why so many people think that there is only one person to love. These people are wrong—absolutely wrong. There is a wider love than this, a love for the whole great brotherhood of humanity. Did you ever notice the force that impells people to do things? There is a motive behind nearly every action and love is that motive in most cases. Columbus loved adventure and exploring. There is the old motive, "Greater love hath no man than he laid down his life for a friend" and many other instances that could be cited. Yes, Kreisler is right, love is the greatest thing in this world.

* * *

MRS. H. EDWARDS, of Hope Mission, 101 Street—I most certainly think love is the greatest factor in the world. We have many evidences of this in our work. For instance during this last Christmas season there was a remarkable spirit shown on all sides. Not one needy family's plight was brought to our attention without some other family showing a willingness to help and co-operate. One family might be a little short on prunes, or some other food and willingly and gladly another family would offer to share its greater portion. These and many other incidents show that, when people are so willing to help in times like these, that love is certainly the finest thing in the world.

* * *

ROBERT ENGLISH, Jr.: "No, I don't think that love is the greatest thing in the world. In these times especially, boys and girls should be absolutely independent of each other—I mean by that they should have nothing that might tie them which would tend to keep them down if the opportunity arises. Love is a great thing—I won't disagree with that—but it is not the greatest thing in the world."

* * *

JOHN A. C. FRASER, Christian Science Committee on Publication: "Fritz Kreisler's statement in yesterday's Bulletin accords with the Bible truth: 'Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it. If a man would give all the substance of his house for love, it would utterly be contemned.'

"Mary Baker Eddy, discoverer and founder of Christian Science, has written in her message to the Mother Church in 1902: 'All Christian faith, hope and prayer, all devout desire, virtually petition: Make me the image and likeness of Divine love.'"

Regular meeting of the Edmonton Public School Board will be held Tuesday, January 10, at 8:00 p.m. in the Board's office, Civic block.

It is expected that Dr. H. M Tory, former president of the University of Alberta and now president of the National Research Council of Canada, together with Dr. Lathe of Ottawa, will arrive in Edmonton to attend a meeting of the Associate Committee of Weed Control of the National Research Council of Canada to be held at the University Thursday, January 19. It is probable that Dr. MacRostie from the University of Manitoba, and S. H. Vigor, Fields Crop Commissioner from Saskatchewan, will also attend.

CAMSELL RIVER SCENE OF NEW SILVER STRIKE

Sensational Find Reported in Great Bear Lake Zone

A sensational new strike of silver has been made on Camsell river to the southeast of the main Great Bear lake field, the Bulletin learned from an authoritative source on Saturday.

The strike eclipses in richness anything yet uncovered on the famous Eldoraro claims of Labine brothers, according to The Bulletin informant.

Prospectors of the A-X syndicate, an outfit headed by Colonel C. D. H. MacAlpine, uncovered the new find.

It is stated that three veins have been uncovered in all—practically all pure native silver.

Work was feverishly continued as long as favorable weather lasted and word of the find did not leak out until last Monday. At that time, the party of prospectors who made the find arrived in McMurray and continued on eastward to The Pas in a Spence-McDonough plane without coming to Edmonton. They then went on to Toronto by plane.

Word of the find did not reach Cameron Bay, headquarters of the Great Bear lake field, for weeks, as the condition of the ice made it unsafe to travel for some time.

The spot on the Camsell river at which the find was made is some 40 miles from Cameron Bay.

Last summer, A-X men uncovered other silver at Camsell river, while gold values have also been reported there.

Friday Bad Day For Trolley Poles

Friday was a tough day for street railway trolley poles, according to overnight police reports at headquarters.

A private ambulance speeding west along 118 avenue rushing an emergency case to the Royal Alexandra hospital crashed into and snapped off a pole at the intersection of the avenue and 89 street. The driver later reported to police that he had swerved his speeding machine south in order to avoid hitting a youth on a bicycle. The rear end of the ambulance swung and side swiped the pole which fell through a window at 8935 118 avenue. The driver did not stop as minutes counted in the race to the hospital.

Charles Purcell 9545 109 avenue driving west along Jasper avenue at 6 a.m. felt his auto skid suddenly on an icy stretch of the road. The machine plunged across the intersection of 118 street and Jasper smashing into a pole and snapping it off at the base.

Edmonton Keeps Up Its Health

Edmonton is keeping fairly healthy these days, only 34 cases of communicable diseases being reported to the city health department this week. This is considered to be a low figure for this time of year. Last week cases totalled 29.

Details of the report as compiled by Dr. R. B. Jenkins, medical officer of health, are as follows, figures for this week and last week being given in the order mentioned: Scarlet fever 1, 0; chickenpox 11, 18; measles 3, 1; mumps 3, 4; whooping cough 12, 6; erysipelas 1, 0; tuberculosis 2, 0; pneumonia 1, 0.

CREAMERIES MAINTAINING BIG BUSINESS

Butter Production in Alberta Slightly Decreased Over Peak Year

Creamery butter production in Alberta during 1932 is tentatively set at 20,850,000 pounds, a figure which will be approximately correct, according to information released on Saturday by officials of the provincial department of agriculture. This is a decrease of about nine per cent over the all-time record established in 1931 when total production was 22,957,000 pounds.

There was recorded, however, a considerable increase in the cheese output, the preliminary 1932 figure being set at 1,435,000 lbs. as against 1,040,588 lbs. for 1931.

Attributable to falling price levels, the total value of all dairy products show a heavy decline over 1931, the total for 1932 being $11,-650,000 as against $15,750,000 in 1931. This is a decrease of about 26 per cent and the lowest value figure in provincial history since 1913.

A BRIGHT SPOT

The total amount graded "special" in 1932 was 9,832,994 pounds, as compared with 8,233,780 pounds in 1931, an increase from 45 per cent of the total in 1931 to 58.7 per cent in 1932.

The amount graded "first" dropped from 39.9 per cent. to 33.6 per cent. in 1932, and the amount graded "second" dropped from 6.8 per cent. to 4.9 per cent. The estimated average price to patrons dropped from 20.2 cents for "special" to 14.5 cents, and for all grades the average dropped from 18.4 cents to 13.5 cents.

Under this year's low price level, the spread in prices paid for butterfat in the different grades meant relatively more to the producer than would be the case in normal years.

The creamery butter passed from 95 creameries as against 93 in 1931 while cheese factories totalled 12 as against 10 in 1931.

Ghostley Tells Scrip Possibility And Advantages

Advantages were claimed for public as against private ownership in an address on Socialized Industries, delivered by W. R. Ball before a recent meeting of the Edmonton Local, United Farmers of Alberta, held at the council chamber of the Civic block.

S. A. G. Barnes, president of the local, was in the chair.

"When we appoint our government representatives, our duty is not finished," counselled Mr. Ball. "We must then see that we make known our wishes to them."

Dr. Raymond C. Ghostley spoke on the advantages of scrip and its possibilities as a medium of exchange.

He cited many instances of successful operation of the scrip system, which he claimed, would relieve the enormous debt of the cities. Scrip was used as early as 1820 in the Isle of Guernsey and was now in use in various parts of Canada and the United States.

He presented a detailed report of scrip's success at St. Paul and claimed that in no instance in history could there be found proof of lack of efficiency in scrip.

Scrip will be discussed with members of the finance committee of the city council.

Police Court

Two city youths who Friday afternoon lifted a $25 ring from a local departmental store, were given suspended sentence for two years on bond of $100 each, when they appeared before Magistrate Col. George B. McLeod in police court Saturday morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of theft.

* * *

The case of Edward Perry and Pady Sullivan charged with being in possession of stolen property, was set over until next Tuesday pending further probe by city detectives. The two accused are alleged to have held cigarettes and tobacco which was stolen early this week when thieves broke into the Spooner Confectionery.

* * *

Albert Orgill, who pleaded guilty some weeks ago to charges of theft of an adding machine and typewriter from a local wholesale warehouse, was again remanded for sentence for a week, and warned that any more memory failure will send him to jail.

When the case opened early in November Orgill promised to make restitution. City detectives acting on his information recovered the typewriter, but so far the location of the adding machine remains unknown.

Three times Orgill has been remanded for sentence and told that sentence would be lightened if he could remember where he disposed of the missing machine. Each time the remand expires Orgill alleges he cannot remember.

"Accused has given police no help at all," Prosecutor Becker told the court.

Magistrate McLeod Saturday laid down the law to the youth telling him in his own interests in keeping clear of jail, he had better recall the location of the machine before the case is called for final disposition.

SHAH RECALLS PERSIAN ENVOY

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The Persian legation today confirmed a report that the Shah had recalled the Persian minister to London, Mirza Ali Ghola Khan Ansari, but stated the reasons for his recall were not known.

Asked whether this was in connection with the Anglo-Persian oil dispute, a legation official reiterated reasons for the recall were not known.

In authoritative British quarters it was stated nothing was known about the minister's recall but if the reports were true it was a Persian domestic affair, since Great Britain would have been informed if it affected the relations between the two countries.

The executive tentatively set the date for the annual meeting of the association for Jan. 21, although this was set, subject to alteration in view of what might transpire at the meeting of Jan. 12.

Old Timer In Bear Lake Mine Field Is In City

He is Nelson Hoy, grizzled old-timer and former partner of Charley Sloan, another veterans of the field. Hoy came out in a plane piloted by Leigh Brintnell, Mackenzie Air Service, and is staying at the King Edward hotel.

For part of the time, Hoy was with the B.E.A.R. syndicate, but all the past summer he was on his own in company with Jack Stevens, another noted northerner, who was a partner of Jack Stark up in the mysterious Nahanni country.

Hoy and Stevens were snowbound on the barrens this winter during a long prospecting trip back from Dease bay, and got back to Cameron bay the day after Christmas, after being away since the beginning of August.

"When we left there, there were only two cabins. When we came back, we thought maybe we had made a mistake—there were around 15 cabins at the bay," grinned Hoy.

Queried about the prospects of Great Bear lake, Hoy said: "It's going to be the biggest mining field in Canada!"

CHINA SEEKING BRITAIN - U.S. EYE-WITNESS

Nat. Government Wants Countries to Know Exact Facts

NANKING, China, Jan. 7—Vernacular newspapers today headlined Chinese dispatches from Geneva stating that Chinese delegations at the League of Nations learned Great Britain and France, at the time Japanese withdrew from Shanghai last spring, "secretly agreed" not to interfere in the Sino-Japanese Manchurian deadlock.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7—The foreign office indicated today that in view of conflicting Chinese and Japanese claims concerning the Japanese occupation of Shanhaikwan and the apparently short-lived hostilities near its sister city of Chinwangtao, the National government has asked the British and United States legations to send military observers there "in order to obtain the facts."

The National government also said that the British charge d'affaires had directed the attention of both the Chinese and Japanese governments to the British interests in Chinwangtao, the port city a few miles from Shanhaikwan which earlier this week was taken by the Japanese.

The British official requested that the two governments guard against any activities which might jeopardize the British interests.

The National government also said that the British consider "the growing seriousness of the Chinwangtao situation as necessitating this reminder."

CHANG HSIAO LIANG IS MASSING FORCES.

By JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Jan. 7—Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, Chinese military leader in the northern provinces, continued today to mass forces in the province of Jehol and in the district near Shanhaikwan, the Chinese city that was taken early this week by the Japanese.

Meanwhile the headquarters of General Nobuyoshi Muto, the Japanese military leader, also declared that the Japanese, determined to localize the conflict near Shanhaikwan unless the Chinese make this impossible, are adding to numbers of their troops.

There were other evidences of increasing tension in Shanhaikwan and vicinity and in several places to the north. Japanese aeroplanes bombed 10,000 Chinese troops who were marching from Pingchuan in Chinli province towards the railroad at Peipiao on Friday. According to military headquarters, the Chinese are constructing positions at Changli, southwest of Shankaikwan and are concentrating their main forces there. They also are erecting defenses along the Shih river, two miles east of Shanhaikwan.

Lieut. General Kunaiki Koiso, chief of staff of the Japanese army in Manchuria, told the Associated Press today that the Japanese would not advance south of the Great Wall unless the Chinese incited them to do so.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS

That big brewery being built on the M-G-M lot . . . but only for picture purposes. . . . And Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durant boxing with a kangaroo. . . . Carey Wilson entertaining Carmelita Geraghty, Colleen Moore and Al Scott at a bridge party . . . and using his new electric bridge table which shuffles and deals the cards automatically.

CAROLE AND MAURICE

Carole Lombard being handed the leading spot opposite Maurice Chevalier in "The Way to Love" . . . all of which makes Hollywood wonder just which one will be the instructor. . . . In any event there should be SOME loving. . . . And when it comes to depression notes it's comforting to refer to the $1500-a-week raise just given Barryl Zanuck, the Warner-First National production head . . . netting him a cool $5000 a week for the next five years . . . things must be picking up.

Connie Bennett, George Cukor and Countess Frasso lunching together on the RKO lot . . . with the countess probably wondering just what Gary Cooper is doing at the time. . . . Frank Joyce, brother of Alice and the most successful manager in town, having so much fun being sick that he refuses to get well.

HUGHES AND GWILI CHUMMY

Howard Hughes, the young millionaire producer, and Gwili Andre lunching at the Brown Derby. . . . Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and Archie Mayo in the same place . . . also "Bubbles" Denny and Ruth Taylor. . . . Ruth is having plenty of fun visiting her old haunts and showing off her young son . . . but says no more pictures for her. . . . Taking care of her husband and youngster is a job more to her liking.

Ricardo Cortez doing his best to buy the complete stock of a store . . . with the salse girls getting a huge kick out of him. . . . How would you like one of those diets guaranteed to add 15 pounds? . . . Karen Morley is trying it out now . . . but her husband still outs-eats her.

A JUVENILE ROMANCE?

What's this? . . . Eric Linden spent most of his spare time on Mitzi Green's set during the filming of her last picture . . . with Mitzi's heart doing flip-flops all the while . . . and she only 13. . . . Gosh, it must be great to be young.

Phil Harris and his band playing that new song, "Lulu," written by Harry Langdon . . . there's nothing funny about it either. . . . Bert Wheeler escorting a very beautiful blond to a preview . . . and paying absolutely no attention to the picture. . . . Mae Clark trying to ride the horse usually ridden by Clark Gable. . . . And then there's the leading man who, when a girl refused to let him kiss her, inquired in a surprised tone, "Don't you know who I am?"

X-Ray Machine Is Invented Substitute For Radium Ore

COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 7.—A 1,000,000-volt x-ray machine designed to deliver power equivalent to $25,000,000 worth of radium was put through it final paces here today before going to a Detroit hospital for cancer research.

The constructors of the device were Dr. Benedict Cassen, a former associate of Dr. R. A. Millikan, the noted scientist, and E. B. Graves.

However, if tests prove its value, the constructors said, the cost of treatment of cancer would be materially reduced.

Dr. Traian Leuctuia and Dr. Kenneth Corrigan of the Detroit institution will conduct preliminary experiments with this latest tool of science, which the inventors believed will yield 800,000 more volts than any machine of its kind in use.

MIRTH MAKER TO HOLD SWAY AT THE RIALTO

Mack Sennett Feature Of Hypnotized To Be Shown

Mack Sennett's much-heralded feature-length production "Hypnotized," starring Moran and Mack has much to recommend it to lovers of good, robust hilarity. At the Rialto theatre Monday for a full week's run it promises to be another record breaker. A succession of novel, mirth-making scenes, enacted by an array of important cimena comics and set in several stupendous backgrounds combine to make "Hypnotized" an outstanding laugh hit for any audience.

Moran and Mack, those "two black crows," are the chief protagonists in the hilarity. Imagine, if you will, the two darkies in the wake of stampeding elephants, caged in with a ferocious lion, placed under the power of an unscrupulous hypnotist, trapped with a panic-stricken crowd on an ocean liner, and a hundred more equally ludicrous moments. Mack Sennett himself directed and supervised the production, which is crammed full of the kind of fun that has placed the comedy maker in the front rank of filmdom's laugh creators.

In addition to Moran and Mack the long cast includes such well-liked screen personalities as Ernest Torrence, Wallace Ford, Charlie Murray, Maria Alba, Alexander Carr and Marjorie Beebe, as well as a host of extras who take part in the big circus scene and on board the specially chartered ocean liner. The two burnt cork comedians have lost nothing of the inimitable drollery that made "why bring that up?" the query of a nation. As the "love interest," Ford and Miss Alba are decidedly effective. Herman Bing as the ship's captain, and Jackie, the lion, are responsible for several giggle-getting episodes.

ALBERTA PEASE, BEANS AND CORN FOR WORLDS SHOW

According to those who judged the exhibits of pease, beans and corn at the recent show held at Lethbridge, Alberta, many of the samples were of such an excellent quality as to warrant entry in the competitive classes of the World's Grain show at Regina in 1933.

Boy! Wazzat? Ah Feels Lak Dere's Spooks

They're back again, Moran and Mack, "The Two Black Crows," in Mack Sennett's greatest comedy feature "Hypnotized" which opens at the Rialto for a one-week run commencing Monday. It's a riot, with a laugh in every foot of film—and what a laugh! Don't miss it. It's the comedy of comedies; a real hotcha of hilarity.

Sand Shark Cuts Short Filming of Joe Brown Scenes

A shark sent Joe E. Brown and a score of swimmers scurrying for the shore during the taking of a scene for his latest First National comedy, "You Said a Mouthful," which will be shown on the screen of the Dreamland theatre today.

The main action of the picture evolves around a marathon swimming race in which Joe is induced to enter through a series of comical errors, although he had never before swum a stroke. These scenes were taken off Catalina Island, where sharks occasionally put in an appearance.

Joe is supposedly attacked by a shark in the picture, but when the players saw a fin cut the water some hundred yards from shore, they knew it was no film prop fish.

FILM WITH NEW THEME AT EMPRESS

Kissless Youth Wakes Up To See Life At The Last Minute

Stuart Erwin plays the role of a young man with $50,000,000 and a lot of book knowledge, who nevertheless has never even been kissed, in "He learned About Women," comedy in which he is featured with Alison Skipworth, Susan Fleming, Grant Mitchell and Gordon Westcott, which comes to the Empress theatre on Monday for three days.

Erwin, who declined stardom after scoring a sensational success, oddly enough in the picture, "Make Me a Star," does as many strange things in his role as the eccentric young millionaire in "He Learned About Women."

STUART IRWIN

He inherits a vast fortune and awakes to a sudden realization that it's about time he saw life. On his first venture out into the world, he stumbles into an auction where the services of the unemployed are being offered to the highest bidders. He impetuously bids high when Miss Fleming mounts the block, and, at her request, when Miss Skipworth, her friend, an old actress who has seen better days, is offered. He gets them both.

Bewildered at first, the two women cook up a scheme. Miss Skipworth craftily lays plans for making Miss Fleming Erwin's wife. Complications, amusing but dramatic, begin developing when Miss Skipworth's ex-husband and an unscrupulous companion try to chisel in, too.

Air Drama At Strand On Today

The test of the real actor is his versatility. To Russell Hopton, featured in Universal's high-powered drama of the government air fleet, "Air Mail," feature attraction at the Strand theatre this week, goes the palm for convincing screen portrayals of sharply contrasting characterizations. They range from the most evil of "heavies" to hero parts and even comics with equal conviction.

The answer to a director's prayer, this talented player has been a home wrecker, doctor, policeman, race track tout, western gunman, social secretary and aviator within the past year of his picture career. He has scored heavily in them all and his lifted himself entirely out of the "type" class, Hollywood's vindication of an actor's artistry.

BANK BLAMES CALGARY FOR ALL ITS WOES

Manager Declares Attempts Made Repeatedly to Save Credit

CALGARY, Jan. 7.—Still balking at bank stipulations, the Finance Committee late today recommended the city apply to the Bank of Montreal for $750,000 credit to guarantee civic operations and prevent the threatened shutdown developing from refusal to pay $300,000 in adverse exchange charges in meeting debenture payments.

MONTREAL, Jan. 7.—The City of Calgary can meet its obligations if it wishes and the Bank of Montreal will give every assistance in enabling it to do so, declared the bank today in a formal statement.

The statement reviewed the situation caused by the refusal of the City of Calgary to meet its bonded obligations of January 1 in United States funds and declared: "In strongly urging the honoring of the city's legal obligations it (the bank) did so with a view to protecting the interests of the citizens and believes its action will be approved by every right thinking person having knowledge of the facts."

TEMPORARY LOANS

Temporary loans for wages, salaries, etc., had been authorized by the bank to prevent hardship and suffering at Calgary.

The complete statement issued "in view of the conflicting statements which have appeared with regard to the City of Calgary and its bankers," follows:

"The Bank of Montreal has repeatedly offered to assist the City of Calgary in meeting payments due in New York funds on January 1 and is still ready to do so. The stand the Bank of Montreal has taken is that if the legal obligations plainly stated in the debentures issued by the city are repudiated the city may find the difficulties of financing its administration very greatly increased through unwillingness of investors to accept the city's securities. An integral part of the debentures in regard to which the present discussion has arisen is the clause that payment at maturity would be made, if desired, 'in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness.'

SUGGESTED WAY OUT.

"As the major portion of the debentures would probably be presented for payment in New York the bank, months ago, suggested to the City of Calgary that it should accumulate funds in New York at favorable opportunities to meet the interest and principal payments due on January 1st. Had the city taken advantage of the bank's offer of assistance, the funds could have been acquired at considerably below the rate prevailing at the present moment. Finally the bank offered to provide funds in New York to meet the maturity pending the purchase of exchange. This offer was not accepted.

"The situation which has now arisen has given the bank no alternative but to review its own position in regard to the extension of future credit. Any temporary advances for capital outlays must of course ultimately be funded by issues of new securities, and the bank would not be justified in making such advances if assurance is lacking regarding the City's debentures.

MAIN DANGER.

That is where the main danger lies—the difficulty the city may face in persuading the lending public to subscribe to its bonds in future.

"The Bank of Montreal has done everything possible to assist the city in carrying on through these difficult times. In strongly urging the honoring of the City's legal obligations it did so with a view of protecting the interests of the citizens and believes its action will be approved by every right-thinking person having knowledge of the facts. While its offers of assistance have been refused and all its protests have gone for naught it has no wish to cause hardship and suffering to the citizens of Calgary and on passage of the proper by-law has authorized temporary loans for wages, salaries, etc., to prevent the shutdown of city services and schools pending collection of 1933 taxes and will continue temporary assistance under a revolving relief credit.

"The city man meet its obligations if it wishes, and the bank will give every assistance in enabling it to do so."

Mayor Takes Issue On Exchange Payment

CALGARY, Jan. 7.—"The Bank of Montreal is assuming we are legally obligated to pay the debentures in United States funds. Calgary civic officials do not hold that opinion."

Mayor Andy Davison last night offered this brief comment in reply to a statement issued by the Bank of Montreal at Montreal concerning the Calgary financial crisis and assurance of the bank sufficient funds to guarantee Calgary operations to avoid hardship.

Declining further comment on the bank's statement, the Mayor issued a copy of a letter which he wrote yesterday to H. C. Francis, Calgary manager of the Bank of Montreal, which was read at yesterday's civic finance committee meeting. The Mayor's letter replied to a communication from the bank which embodied remarks also found in the bank's statement from Montreal.

The letter, in part, read:—

"In the letter in question, the following sentence occurs —

"'In strongly urging the city to honor its legal obligations, the bank did so with a view to protecting the interests of the citizens and it believes its action will be approved by every person having knowledge of the facts.'

"Reference is made further on in the letter to what is termed the city's default. In the past your bank, on whom the city has relied for expert service, has paid American exchange premiums on all coupons and debentures which provided for any form of payment in New York.

"According to your letter of the fifth of January you have apparently arrived at a definite and final conclusion as to the city's legal obligations. I would be glad if you would indicate to me with respect to the outstanding debentures and coupons what those legal obligations are and on what judgments, of what courts and on what principles your conclusions are based."

Calgary Profits By Toronto Bonds

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—Although the city of Calgary has defaulted on payment of American exchange on their bonded indebtedness payable in New York funds, they in all probability have profited to the extent of at least $6,000 at the expense of the city of Toronto as a result of maturing bond issues in New York finance Commissioner Wilson said today.

Calgary were holders of $52,000 in Toronto bonds and by reason of the fact they were not registered it is impossible to ascertain in what country they were redeemed, except from the holders of the bonds, but the finance commissioner believes in all probability they were sent to New York for payment.

There have been approximately 1,500 biographers of Abraham Lincoln.

Shaw High-Hats the U.S.

"THE 100 PCT. AMERICAN IS 99 PCT. IDIOT."

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

"THERE IS LITTLE LIBERTY IN AMERICA, WHERE PEOPLE ARE INTIMIDATED BY GANGSTERS."

By MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, Jan. 7.—A cat may look at a king. At least there is a proverb that says so.

But America, the cat which has been the special target for George Shaw's verbal brickbats for 30 years, won't get even a look at the man she has helped crown king of the literary world.

George Bernard Shaw (now you know him) is on his way around the world on a cruise. But that world won't include America. The Empress of Britain will halt momentarily in Los Angeles harbor before going through the Panama Canal, and probably will also call at New York. But Ireland's Shaw doesn't plan to land.

"I may meet a few friends and do a little broadcasting. I have made no arrangements. But every conceivable person in America seems to be making arrangements about me. This will mean nothing to me, nor to them. Really, I shall just look in at America—and look out again."

CHOSE POLICY DELIBERATELY.

Shaw, as a satiric young playwrite of the 90's and the first two decades of this century, shocked and thrilled two continents with his social reform lectures painlessly delivered through the medium of brilliant plays. Appreciating to the full the value of the old American slogan that "It pays to advertise," Shaw has always oscillated between pulling the British lion's tail and panning America by turns. America, especially, loved it, though it has become less fun recently, now that we are panning America ourselves.

With characteristic shrewdness Shaw pounced upon the idea that nothing could make him more talked about in America than to attack the United States and its people. He himself put his program in distinct words:

"I myself have been particularly careful never to say a civil word to the United States. I have scoffed at their inhabitants as a nation of villagers. I have defined the 100 per cent American as 99 per cent idiot. And they just adore me and will go on adoring me."

"LIBERTY" TOO IRONIC

On another occasion explaining why he did not go to the United States, he said:

"I do not want to see the Statue of Liberty. I am a master of comic irony. But even my appetite for irony does not go as far as that."

In May, 1928, he called upon Adolphe Menjou, the film star, who told Shaw he ought really to visit the United States as the folks would be crazy about him. To which Shaw blandly replied:

"I am getting too old for that; besides there is no point in it. All nice Americans go to England and then come straight to see me."

One of the oddities about George is that he does not seem to be able to keep off the topic of America for long. If he talks about Russia he contrasts it with America.

In October, 1931, knowing that he was a rabid dry, the World Prohibition Federation asked Shaw to speak to them at Caxton Hall in London. To the astonishment of the good drys, most of his speech was taken up with an expose of what he called the evils of prohibition in the United States. He said the bootleggers had discovered they had the police and the courts corrupted and intimidated and gangsters then arose.

C.B.S.'s FAVORITE TOPIC

Then he went on to contrast the United States with Soviet Russia where he said the Bolsheviks would not give bootleggers or gangsters ten minutes.

The amusing postscript to all this anti-Americanism is that Shaw is always glad to write for American newspapers and magazines at so much per "write"; is always eager for the American production of his plays; has made more money from American royalties than from any other source; has made of Archibald Henderson of the University of North Carolina his pet biographer; and in London his favorite hostess is the Virginia-born Lady Astor, who always exhibits Shaw at her garden parties as her tame lion.

"Probably the United States will be greatly excited," said Shaw before sailing, "but there is nothing for them to get excited about. I am going on a cruise and part of the time we shall be in the neighborhood of the United States. When we are, I may land, but only for a few minutes. But there is no need for America's eager millions to come racing to the favored spots. They might upset the continent and all to no purpose."

From America, one hears a faint echo of the last words of that Shavian shot—"all to no purpose."

MARKETS CLOSE IN MEMORIAM

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—As a tribute to Calvin Coolidge all security markets and most of the commodity exchanges in New York are closed today. Stock exchanges in other leading cities will also suspend. A majority of the principal commodity markets throughout the United States shorten their trading periods or cease operations entirely.

Resolutions of sorrow and decisions to close were adopted by governers of the New York Stock exchange and security exchanges.

INTERNATIONAL FIELD IN RACE

Five Nations' Entries in Grand National

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—The forthcoming Grand National, famous steeplechase, which will be run at Aintree on March 24, will have a stronger international aspect than in many years, said the New York Times Friday in a special cable from London.

The entries closed with 66 nominations, eight more than last year. Apart from the cream of the English stables there will be challengers from the United States, Ireland, France and Germany.

The winners of the last four years are again entered: Forbra, Grakle, Shaun Goilin and Gregalach.

JOE JUDGE MAY GO TO DODGERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The Sun says Joe Judge, veteran first baseman of the Washington Senators, has come to terms with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League and will sign a contract for $11,000 as soon as he receives his formal release from Clark Griffith.

Confirmation was lacking at the Dodger offices but neither was there an outright denial.

Jakie May Given Outright Release

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Jakie May, veteran southpaw pitcher, Friday was given his unconditional release of the Georgia-Alabama league and

May broke into professional baseball in 1914 with the Newman club o fthe Georgia-Alabama league and ultimately served with three National league clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, the Cincinnati Reds and the Cubs. He came to the Cubs in 1931 and was used mostly as a relief pitcher. May is in his 35th year.

As a 10-year man, he is free to line up with any team, major or minor, that he wishes.

MAROONS ARE ON COMEBACK TRAIL

Have Chance to Tie Leafs by Beating Chicago

Montreal Maroons are on the comeback trail. If the burly redmen can get past Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night they will have—well, at least pulled up even with the romancing ringman.

Fresh after beating Rangers and tying Toronto Leafs, Maroons must whip a few past Charlie Gardiner to keep pace with the group-leading Leafs who stand three full games in front of their division in the National Hockey League.

Maroons may not gain on Toronto, who are at home tonight to Detroit Red Wings, but then the onrushing Wings might arrange even that. In the other Saturday night clash Ottawa Senators take on Canadiens at Montreal.

While the Hawks try to stem the Maroon tide, Americans and Rangers will indulge in their Sabbatical struggle for Gotham hockey followers and Detroit will be back home to entertain Boston Bruins. The last time the Wings and Bruins played at the border they finished with fists flying.

Yip Foster Goes To St. Paul Six

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 7.—St Paul club of the American Hockey Association last night announced the purchase of "Yip" Foster from Boston Bruins of the National league. Foster, native of Toronto, has been playing with Boston Cubs in the Canadian-American league.

CLOSER RACE IS FORECAST OF HARRIDGE

American Baseball Prexy Says Yanks Will Have Opposition

By WILLIAM HARRIDGE
(President, American League)

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—A much better balanced race is my forecast for 1933 in the American Baseball League. A year ago, I predicted the Athletics would have more competition than during the previous three seasons. They did. In fact the Yankees won the pennant by as great a margin as the Athletics had been in the habit of winning and a one-sided race was the result.

TIGHTER RACE

Because of that one-team contest, American League clubs have made many player changes which will, to the best of my belief, result in the Yankees being provided with much stiffer competition than in 1932.

There is no doubt of the Chicago White Sox being restored to First Division strength with the addition of outfielders Simmons and Haas, and third baseman Dykes of Philadelphia, pitcher Durham and infielder Rhyne of Boston. Chicago, also, is banking on pitcher Vic Frasier being restored to health and able to pitch winning baseball.

While Philadelphia parted with three star players, Connie Mack is confident he has in Cramer, Coleman, Finney and Higgins four young players capable of replacing the men he sold to Chicago and keeping his team high up in the race.

BALL SOCKERS

Washington made three deals tended to make the Nationals stronger contenders than they were last season. In Manush, Goslin and Schulte, they will have one of the hardest hitting outfields in the history of our league.

In the pitching staff, two veteran southpaws, Whitehall and Stewart, with Crowder, Weaver, Whitehill, Stewart, Al Thomas and McAfee, Washington will be equipped with eight starting pitchers.

Stanley Harris is confident Marberry will deliver for him in Detroit. Detroit also has some sensational youngsters to be developed this year in Pitcher Rowe, Catcher Rieber and Outfielder Fox, of Beaumont, and Shortstop Owen of Newark.

HELP BOSTON

Boston will profit by a deal with Chicago. The Red Sox added four right-hand hitters. Right now, it looks certain as if outfielder Seeds and infielder Mulleavy, included in that deal, would be installed as regulars at Boston with a chance of Hodapp, former Cleveland star, staging a comeback.

To get Goslin, Schulte and Stewart of St. Louis, Washington had to part with three stars, outfielders Carl Reynolds and Sam West and pitcher Lloyd Brown. In fact, the Browns believe they got the better of the deal. Incidentally, the Browns finished the year with a sensational third baseman, Art Scharein.

INDIANS ADD

Cleveland has another first baseman in Charley Boss, who had a spectacular season in the southern league last year; while from Toledo, it obtained Hale who may crowd Willie Kamm off third base, a splendid young catcher in Pytlak and at least two promising young pitchers in Bean and Winegarner.

New York made no trades but did purchase from Class AA league teams, three pitchers, Van Atta of St. Paul, Deshong of Sacramento and Brennan of Newark.

Six Thousand See Eagles Beat Quebec

QUEBEC, Jan. 7—New Haven Eagles doubled the score on Quebec Beavers to win a Canadian-American league fixture 4-2 Friday afternoon before a crowd of 6,000 people, freed from business ties by the legal Epiphany holiday.

In the third period a sparrow provided the most "thrilling" exhibition. The bird floated down to the ice from the arena rafters and began pecking at peanuts spectators tossed to him. He had to be "shooed" several times from the ice.

Moose Jaw Takes Regina Victorias

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Jan. 7—Stan Evans' Moose Jaw Falcons showed plenty of punch to mark up their first win of the season at the expense of the Regina Vivs after ten minutes of overtime, 2-1 in a senior hockey league game last night at the Stadium.

Cosgrave's Ranks Are Hard Hit By Political Turnover

She's Fatal To All Her Boy Friends

Somehow the boys who go out with Margaret Mary Collins, 20-year-old Chicago blond-brunet-redhead, above, all have pretty bad luck. The last seven have been shot to death, either by police or gang guns, and now the eighth, Sol Feldman, is in the hospital with a police bullet. He tried to rob a fur store. Mary changes the color of her hair as fast as her boy friends find bullets.

Fears Felt for Health of President—Said to be Breaking Down

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 7—William Norton, Labor leader, opened his general election campaign today, at Naas, County Kildare, with protestations of allegiance to the cause of President Eamon De Valera and denunciation of former President William T. Cosgrove and Great Britain.

Meanwhile friends of the president were reported apprehensive that his health was breaking down under the strain of the campaign. They said he wore two overcoats and read his speech at the College Green demonstration last night and that he did not appear his usual energetic self.

The president, however, refused to accede to requests that he take things easier for a while.

Mr. Norton in his first campaign speech said the Labor party was appealing for election on the same national and economic program as last year when it decided to throw in its lot with the Republican government.

He declared it stood for renunciation of the oath of allegiance to the King which it held as a useless relic of feudalism.

At the same time, he said, the party would welcome a settlement of political and economic differences with the United Kingdom provided the settlement were an honorable one.

By this he was thought to mean a settlement which would not require concessions on the part of the Free State regarding payment of land annuities to the Bank of England suspended a few months ago, or regarding the oath question.

He launched a bitter attack on Mr. Cosgrave, whose party, he said was in collusion with the British government.

RIALTOS HALT FLYING E. A. C.'S

Midget Leaders Bow to Tommy Graham's Club

Scoring two goals in rapid succession, during the last eight minutes of play Tommy Graham's Rialtos scored a 3-2 win over the E.A.C. midgets in a league game played at the 109 street rink. By virtue of their win they move into a tie with the clubmen for the league leadership.

Scooping the disc at centre ice Reggie Kirstien, flashy winger of the athletic squad and leading goal getter of the league, slipped around the Rialto forwards and let drive with a blazing shot as he neared the defence which had Taylor beat all the way. The Rialtos tried hard to equalize but the period ended with the Athletics leading 1-0.

The second period had only just began when the E.A.C.'s scored their second counter, Kirstien again doing the act on a solo effort. The showmen scored three minutes later when Ferreir passed the rubber to Zeweniuk who poked it into the E.A.C. net. This was the first counter scored against the clubites this season. The period ended with the league leaders leading 2-1.

The final canto opened with a fast brand of hockey, the showmen trying hard to equalize and the Moher gang attempting to hold them at bay. The clubites were successful until the last seven minutes when Paulas, star centre of the First street mob, scored the tieing counter on a solo effort. The latter scored the winning goal a minute later when he whipped the rubber past Leslie after receiving it from Stan Ferrier.

The game was of the best seen this season and a good brand of hockey was witnessed, with the E.A.C.'s having a slight edge on the allround playing.

The game was handled by Jack Campbell.

Legislation Need If Bout Is Staged

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Chicago's chances of playing host to the Max Schmeling-Max Baer heevyweight bout depend upon legislation to provide for 15-round matches, says Promoter Jack Dempsey.

The Illinois law limits non championship bouts to 10 rounds. Schmeling declines to fight less than 15 rounds.

Macklin Hockey Squad Triumphs Over Chauvin, 6-4

CHAUVIN, Jan. 7.—Macklin and Chauvin clashed New Year's night here in the first hockey game of the season on local ice.

Macklin scored one in the first period and then Chauvin scored one. This method of scoring was followed until the last half of the final period when the score stood 4-4. The game speeded up and, as a remaking a final score of 6-4 in favor of Macklin.

LINEUP

Macklin—Goal, W. Bowles; defence, F. Thompson and F. Kidd, forwards, B. Ivor, P. Predigar, B Kidd; subs, F. Foster, W. Stang, J Stang, B. Barber.

McGill Skiers Are Prominent

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 7—Skiers from McGill university, Montreal, took three places in the 11½-mile Langlauf race in the international university ski meet here Friday, although they lost the event.

Harry Pangman came in fourth. Ross Wilson, another Canadian, was seventh, and Frank G. Campbell, McGill, ninth. Bill Ball finished 12th. The event was won by Gunnsakshauf, of Norway, in one hour nine minutes, 36 seconds.

Pla-Mors Defeat Greyhound Squad

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 7.—A third period rush, bringing goals from the sticks of Campbell and Mulvihill, gave the Kansas City Pla-Mors a 2-0 victory over St. Paul Greyhounds in the American Hockey Association last night. Mulvihill made his tally on a pass from Campbell.

The provincial department of agriculture of P. E. I. will pay the cost of transportation on all approved exhibits to the World's Grain Show at Regina in 1933. These must be in the hands of the Secretary at Regina on or before March 1, 1933.

ADOLF HITLER

When the meeting ended, the German Labor party offered to confer membership upon the little man, in soldier's uniform, who had contradicted their speaker so well. Hitler accepted and three days later was named chairman of the propaganda committee, a difficult post. His first task was to attract more people to the meetings.

With no money in the treasury, Hitler conceived an economical way to attract attention. He and other members wrote letters to friends inviting them to attend the meetings. By means of these letters and Hitler's swaying speeches, the party grew by leaps and bounds. Soon it was necessary to hire a large hall to hold the crowds.

Hitler, now the undisputed leader of the party, changed its name to the National-Socialist party (the "Nazis.") He adopted the swastika as an emblem, and a red flag with a white circle containing the swastika as the party's flag. And along with these changes, Hitler organized his "storm troops," composed of war veterans and young boys.

By 1928 he had nearly 10,000 "storm troops," all well disciplined and devoted to their leader. Hundreds of die-hard monarchists were pouring into the state to join hands with the Fascists. Among them were General Erich von Ludendorff, chief of staff of the German armies during the World war, as well as other army officers.

On Nov. 8, 1923, Hitler and his legions struck. He had four associates invaded the government building in Munich, pistols in hand. Firing a bullet into the ceiling, he told the nervous officials a revolution had been proclaimed. Although Ludendorff proposed this plan of action, he was not informed of the striking hour.

A few minutes later Fascist detachments were marching through Munich on their way to Berlin. At the same time posters proclaiming the revolution were being posted up on every street corner. But Hitler failed to consider the reichswehr in his plans as he assumed General von Lossow's defection meant a revolt among the troops.

EDMONTON GETS HEAVY SNOWFALL

When the temperature dropped to 10 below zero Friday night at 10 o'clock, it looked like the setting in of another cold snap but since that time the mercury has made an even, steady ascent until at 8:00 a.m. Saturday the temperature was zero.

A wind from the south-southeast Saturday morning was driving a fine powdery snowfall. The snow, including Friday morning's fall, amounted to 1¼ inches, up to 9:00 a.m. Saturday.

The barometer, Saturday morning, was dropping, the pressure reading being 27.48. At 9:00 a.m. the temperature was steady at zero.

Total production of coal in Canada amounted to 11,786,580 tons, a reduction of only 3.7 per cent while imports in the first 11 months were 13.8 per cent lower than in the same period of 1931.

SPOTLIGHT

By H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SHEILA SHAYNE, 18, whose parents were well known vaudeville actors, is in New York looking for a job. Sheila is a dancer. In spite of the fact that she has spent almost her entire life on the stage her ambition is to mary and have a home like those she has seen in small towns in which she has played.

On a few hours' notice she is hired to take the place of DAISY GLEASON, another dancer who has sprained an ankle. Sheila goes to JOE PARIS' office in "Tin Pan Alley" to rehearse. There she meets TREVOR LANE and DICK STANLEY, both rich. Lane asks Sheila to dance at a party he is giving but she refuses, knowing that after a day of rehearsing and the performance that night she will be too tired.

She goes to the theatre and there meets PHIL SHORT, an [illegible] acquaintance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII.

SHEILA was glad to see someone she knew—even an old sweetheart like Phil Short. A sweetheart who, as a matter of fact, had dropped her suddenly without warning. Why had Phil stopped coming to see her? Why had he stopped telephoning? Sheila had never known.

As nonchalantly as though he had seen her only a few days before, Phil stood there. Well, nothing had happened, really. After what the most caustic observer would have called a rush Phil had simply disappeared.

Perhaps he had had a bad year, though now he seemed prosperous. Saxophonists [illegible] well paid even in off-seasons. And Phil himself had once pointed out that it isn't what an actor earns but what he saves that counts. Living had become cheaper.

In spite of the hearty greeting and the nonchalant manner, Sheila saw almost at once that Phil wore a harassed look. Even with an old score to pay off, she felt sorry for him.

"So you're taking Daisy's place?" he was saying. "That's fine, Sheila. I've often wondered what you were doing."

"Wasn't the telephone working down your way?" she asked, half vexed, half laughing.

"I—I couldn't call you," Phil began. Plainly he was embarrassed. "But that doesn't mean I didn't think about you."

"Well, thoughts keep a person warm in the winter," was he response, the caustic phraise borrowed from Ma Lowell. Then Sheila relented.

"Of course I'll have dinner with you. We can't be long [illegible]"

* * *

During the dinner he explained other things. Upon leaving Ma Lowells rooming house, said Phil, he had married. Yes, married. His face clouded a trifle as he said the word, and it was evident that the marriage was not, for some reason, a happy one. He was vague about it. The girl's name was Mildred. She came from his home town [illegible] near Des Moines.

Just now, with conditions as they were, Mildred was living with Phil's parents. Sheila gathered that the daughter-in-law—strangely enough—had a more desirable place in the hearts of the Short family than did the son. "The folks think the world and all of Milly," was the way Phil put it.

The dinner was excellent, though hurried. Sheila ordered lightly, as Phil did also, for both had the performance to think of. The act would go on in three-quarters of an hour.

The young man was friendly, agreeable. It was nice to see Phil again. In the show business one couldn't always account for sudden departures, failures to explain, ommitted farewells. By the time she reached the dressing room Sheila felt rather friendly toward her old admirer and a little sorry for Mildred. Though his attitude toward Sheila had been above reproach, there was no denying the fact that Phil was a flirt.

Back in the dressing room, the "arty dancers," as Lottie had somewhat scornfully [illegible] them, had returned from a half hour's ener[illegible] tossed about in confussion. They [illegible] a great deal [illegible] ignoring the others.

The art dancers, billed as the "Classic Nine," were not regular troupers. That is, they were not regularly booked, but instead were trying out a new number. It was soon clear that all of them were down on their luck, stretching every penny as far as it would possibly go.

Lottie confided to Sheila, busy with her cosmetic pan, that the only good number in the "Classic [illegible] a blond too, but [illegible] ence. The two youthful dancers had honey-colored hair which obviously grew that way without benefit of art or decoration.

However, Lottie might feel, Sheila soon was aware that these girls were not trying to appear superior. They were not cheap, Sheila would have told you. The shabby little street suits which they were busily donning were well cut and reminded Sheila of the clothes worn by the smartest "Follies" girls. Dark, plain, unostentatious and expensive. Not fluffy or loud as so many chorus girl's costumes. Their hats were just hats—difficult to describe but suave and sure of themselves.

* * *

Sheila worked on at the dressing table. Lottie's specialty came first and then Sheila's—with a wait between while the band, elegant in evening clothes, performed.

Her hair would do though she was sorry there had not been time for a shampoo and wave. Now that the exchequer was about to be replenished, Sheila could afford that.

She lighted the tiny lamp, melted the cosmetic in the little "frying pan" and beaded her lashes carefully. Darkened her lids with blue make-up, crimsoned her lips with generous strokes, dabbed rouge high on her cheek bones. Close at hand she looked grotesque, anything but intriguing. But beyond the footlights the patches of color would be subdued to a natural flush, a hazy loveliness, glowing and sparkling with health.

Next came her hose, carefully smoothed on, and her dancing slippers. A silken slip and then Daisy's frilled gown, tight at the waist and billowing to her knees. If it had been fitted to Sheila it could not have been more suitable. She would wear it for the first number. Lottie, rather grand and aloof in a tiara and sweeping blue satin, watched as Sheila promenaded across the dressing room.

"I'd take this other dress up a little more on the side," Miss Kilcoyne suggested, turning from inspection of her own huge pink hair ribbon. Lottie agreed, catching needle and thread from her overnight bag.

Sheila shuffled a few steps, winced, smiled, tapped [illegible] up. The band was playing the first number. Lottie, clearing her throat, caught up a chiffon handkerchief the size of a lunch cloth and left hurriedly for the wings. The art dancers, still in their street clothes, [illegible] eyed Sheila curiously and, had she but known it, enviously.

"Nervous?" one of the honey-colored blonds asked, smiling.

Sheila smiled too, and shrugged. Of course she was nervous! But it was like the excited nervousness of a circus horse sniffing sawdust after a long vacation. Soon she would be out there in the glare of the footlights. Phil, Roscoe and the rest would be behind her. An audience, hostile or friendly in front. A sea of faces swimming [illegible]

The orchestra was bringing Lottie's number to a close with a blare. Applause, not voluminous but encouraging. There, Lottie was taking a bow. And another! That was a mistake—forcing the bows that way. Sheila liked to be hustled back to the stage, hand in hand with the band leader, bowing shyly, backing out before the audience was willing to relinquish her. But to force applause was bad business. Presently the clapping became milder, merely a polite patter.

Sheila stood in the wings. Roscoe waved his banton, Phil nodded and the band crashed into melody. Two bars. Three bars. How did it go? Oh—this way! Sheila ran on. Now she was dancing! Dancing to a full house, too.

"Tum-ti-tum. Don't take that last turn there, baby!" She could still hear Bill Brady's admonishing tone, still hear his "ta-ta, ta-ta!" Sheila didn't take the turn. It was glorious. [illegible] Dancing on a breath of wind.

Now a run up the stage, a few steps around Roscoe, who beamed as she skimmed past him, his baton flicking his approval. She darted toward him, whisked away coquettishly [illegible]

[illegible] act, of course, but Sheila knew he [illegible] pleased. This was like old times [illegible] appearing. Then, waiting for Roscoe's nod, she reappeared [illegible] Roscoe beckoning her [illegible] toward him on her toes, [illegible] bowing. They advanced toward the footlights, bowed to the house [illegible] each other, her finger tips in [illegible] moist, fat palm.

Applause [illegible]. It broke in sudden [illegible] now here, now there, and [illegible] over the entire house. [illegible] stood still. Was [illegible] going to dance an encore? [illegible] again, a low sweeping, skip[illegible] bow. Sheila ran off to change [illegible] the next number. But no [illegible] had seen the man in the f[illegible] who was still applauding v[illegible]

Sheila had seen him! There [illegible] correct evening attire, a [illegible] sight in that cozy little neighborhood house, sat Dick Stanley. [illegible] was alone.

ESKIMOS FACING HEAVY FOUR-DAY SCHEDULE

EDMONTON
BULLETIN SPORTS

D'ATS and PANS by —BILL LEWIS

Duke Keats and his Eskimos have a great chance to change the whole complexion of this Western Canada Hockey League race within the next few days. If things work out okay, you may b looking at those Esks 'way up the league ladder for they are faced with the opportunity to clamber up there if only they are able. And I think they are. To-night, they battle Kenny McKenzie's Regina Capitals here at the Arena, then they head south to play Tigers in Calgary Monday; and Tuesday they are back home to play the Bengals here that night.

That schedule of games means they are playing three times in four days—a tough asignment but one that is full of plenty of possibilities if they are able to take full advantage of them.

His Grace the 'Dook' is fully determined that his club must get every point possible in these three games. He realizes that the Esks would be right in the thick of the fight for leadership if they can win them—and he wants them won.

In fact, he has threatened plenty of shaking up among his present crew unless the major share of the three games are won. Which will make the boys go at top speed every minute of the contests.

His partner of the old days, Kenny McKenzie, who is now owner-manager of the Reginans, pulled out of Edmonton with a victory on the last visit here but the Duke has no intention of allowing Kenny and his Caps to get a second triumph in this city and at the expense of the Eskimos. No sir, not much.

Orders are orders to those Eskimos and they'll be cut to stop the Capitals—big Gene Pusie and all—at any cost.

The Calgary games next week present a pretty difficult proposition for a couple of wins but, at the same time, it must be remembered that the Esks had them beaten all the way here last Monday only to lose out on a pair of lucky goals.

Sports committee of the Edmonton Federation of Community Leagues is making a real forward step in the promotion of athletics this winter. The committee has put speed skating on an organized basis under the Federation and individual meets will be held by each league, with a grand carnival towards spring in which all will compete.

This is a higly-commendable step in the right direction to bring this particular sport into its deserved prominence in this part of the country and President Lloyd Wood expects that eventually Edmonton, and the West generally, will turn out skaters of real championship calibre.

Bill "Big" Tilden, greatest player tennis has ever known according to most of the folks who know their court game, is to retire at the end of the 1933 season, according to press despatches last night.

Folowers of the great Philadelphia tennis master will view his passing from active competition with great regret, for he has retained the same "color" of his greatest Davis Cup days even since joining the less-publicised professional tennis ranks.

Boxer: Anyone can enter climinations without being affiliated with a club, providing they meet the requirements of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

PEDEN FAVORITE WITH GERMANS

DORTMUND, Germany, Jan. 7—William "Torchy" Peden, Canada's sensational gift to the bike-racing game, started out last night in quest of additional six-day marathon laurels. His German partner, Bernhard Stuebecks, and the big red-head from Victoria were favored to beat the 12 teams which competed against them in the long grind around the Dortmund amphitheatre track.

Advance notices in the press have extolled Peden's prowess, the winning of his last four starts and the fact he has been co-vanquisher of the fields which have started against him and his partners in ten of his last 13 races.

There was many a lusty "Hoch, Peden" from the 5,000 who witnessed the start of the race.

BEATS POREDA BY TECHNICAL KAYO VERDICT

By EDWARD J. NEILL, Associated Press Sports Writer

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Once more the blonde Tiger of old, burly Ernie Schaaf, Boston sailor heavyweight, battered young Stanley Poreda into a technical knockout defeat in six savage rounds last night.

Apparently completely recovered from the slump that all but carried him out of the top-flight heavyweight picture, the bull-chested Nordic stablemate of champion Jack Sharkey battered the young Jerseyman to the floor twice in the second round, again in the fourth, and once more before Referee Donovan called a halt after [illegible] seconds of the sixth.

Schaaf weighed 209½ pounds, Poreda, 203.

NEVER IN DOUBT

He hurled himself upon the big, black-thatched Jerseyman at the opening bell, punched him into a corner, and then ran into a succession of straight rights and right upper-cuts and left him dizzy at the bell.

But the sailor came back viciously in the second. He caught Poreda flush on the chin, all of his 209 pounds riding on the punch as he charged in and let fly short and straight from the shoulder.

Poreda went down, so badly hurt he staggered uncertainly to his feet at four instead of taking the advantage of nine seconds allowed him. Schaaf charged the wallowing Jerseyman and Poreda took a fearful lacing, collapsing finally under a barage of left hooks just as the bell came to his rescue.

KEPT UP GAMELY

Frantic seconds barely were able to carry Poreda to his corner, but he came out gamely for the third, though Glassy-eyed. Somehow he managed to ward off Schaaf's frantic rushes and even found the strength, near the end of the round, to trade rights to the head and stop the sailor's charges for a moment.

Vain-gloriously Poreda stood in his corner instead of resting between the third and fourth, but it did his strength no good. Schaaf caught him with two solid rights to the head and Stanley went down for nine. When he came up, weak and wobbly, Schaaf laced his body with both hands, terrific full swinging punches that brought grunts from the 7,000 faithful who sat too tense to cheer, watching the fearful walloping.

PITIFUL FIGURE

But again Poreda came back in the fifth, though his face wore the smeary smile of the fighter about to go. Wearily he threw his right hand, the punch that had beaten Primo Carnera, Johnny Risko, and Schaaf, among others, but he was bowed from the body beating and his teetering legs carried him around in a sort of fantastic eccentric dance.

Once the bell rang for the sixth, Schaaf could not be denied. He swept from his corner with a left hook to the head, another left and a right cross and Poreda dropped to the floor.

'Niners Clash With Poolers Arena Sunday

The juniors go to war tomorrow afternoon with the now dangerous Poolers crossing sticks with Bill Ruff's Fort-Niners in a league fixture at the Arena. Play is timed for three o'clock sharp.

To date the Soldiers have yet to enter themselves on the right side of the ledger, but as Boss Ruff argues, it can't go on forever. Sooner or later the Liberals or Poolers are going to get a surprise from the youngsters who sport the Battalion livery.

Tomorrow is a good day to begin proceedings and the Poolers, according to the 'Niners, would make a nice appetite to start on.

It will be hot and heavy, with both sides doing their darndest for a win. For the Poolers, victory means undisputed possession of first place, and for the red shirts, a pair of much needed points.

GENE SARAZEN HOT FAVORITE FOR L.A. OPEN

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7—Gene Sarazen was listed as the favorite Friday to win the Los Angeles $5,000 open tournament which starts today.

However, the British and United States open champion, who stepped off a train here Thursday and jostled par of the Wilshire Country Club course may not have things so easy. Several veterans and a handful of youths in that field of 128 starters are expected to cause Sarazen trouble.

LACOMBE BEATS INNISFAIL TEAM

Captures Big Six Battle in Overtime, 5-3

LACOMBE, Jan. 7—Lacombe came from behind to defeat Innisfail 5-3 in a Big Six league hockey game, played on Innisfail's new outdoor rink.

It snowed during the entire game and the accumulation made it very difficult to carry the puck and keep it.

Overtime was required to settle the game. Innisfail got in close for two before Lacombe could score, and they got another in the second to make it 3-1. Watson was invincible from then on, Lacombe tieing the score in the third period and making two more in overtime.

Weyburn Beavers Downed By Aces

REGINA, Sask., Jan. 7—A sizzling third period drive, led by Big Bill Conn, failed to redeems a costly first period penalty of Joey Mergens and Weyburn Beavers went down before Regina Aces 3-2, at the Stadium last night, before sparsely populated benches. The win put the Reginans on top of the Southern Senior Hockey league.

Drumheller Team Proving A Threat

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Jan. 7.—Drumheller Miners took a one-game lead in the Southern Alberta Senior Amateur Hockey League here last night by defeating Calgary Bronks 3-2 in a closely contested game. It was the second straight victory for the Miners over the Calgary outfit, the Drumheller team having taken a 4-3 victory in the Bronks' home city.

Hockey Player Ends Own Life

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Jan. 7.—Rudoph "Red" McPhee, former hockey player, died in his hotel room here yesterday after taking a dose of potassium cyanide solution. No inquest will be held, the coroner has decided. He was about 33 years old and was a native of Moose Jaw.

Maple Leafs Play Tie With Judeans

John Stanley and Campbell starred for the Leafs, while Charlie Tarrow and Fred Podersky were the outstanding players for the Judeans.

Dan Podersky was the referee.

Dr. Erik Ljunger, Swedish geologist, thinks South America was once buried under an ice cap.

Regina Pats Beat Saskatoon Tigers

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 7.—Regina Pats defeated Saskatoon Tigers 3 to 2 in an exhibition junior hockey game here last night. Cairns, Motter and Stinson scored for the winners, and O'Keefe and Welsh for the losers. Nine hundred fans witnessed the game, which was played in sub-zero weather.

MINERS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD BY TRIUMPH

Bad Break Costs Bronks Game in Drumheller Friday Night

DRUMHELLER, Jan. 7.—An unlucky break, when the puck rebounded off Sorenson's leg after Palfrey had cleared from Hoffman's wing shot cost Rosie Helmer's Bronks the game last night against Drumheller Miners, before a packed arena, cinching the leadership in the southern Alberta senior amateur league for the Miners. Final score was 3-2.

Bronks opened scoring early in the first period, Sorensen finding the net from Luft's centre and the Miners equalized in the second stanza, Bill Wright stickhandling the length of the ice for a dandy shot when on top of the Bronk goalie.

In the final period the two teams battled hard for a victory, the fans seeing some speedy play and brilliant checking on both sides. Anderson slammed a hot shot at Palfrey after a quick run down the ice, the goalie dropping to save. Badger took a slam, the puck being cleared for Lemiski to pull from the back of the net and tuck in the corner for the Miners' second tally. Luft had equalized from Sorensen's pass when Hoffman's swipe at the rubber from the boards followed by a short scramble in front of the net gave the Miners the edge.

For the last five minutes the Calgary aggregation kept play in the Miners' blue line, but Jimmy McNamara, in goal, turned the puck aside as they came along.

LEAGUES FOSTER SPEED SKATING

Speed skating will be one winter sport that the Federation of Community Leagues intend sponsoring on a big scale this season, judging by the enthusiasm displayed at a meeting of the sports committee held Thursday night.

Following are the representatives of the various communities who were in attendance: Archie Campbell, Garneau; E. E. Howard, Cromdale; Gordon McLean, Dr. A. B. Cameron, Calder; M. J. Warner, Wm. Hustler, Bennett; A. Shirley, Ross Flats; Joseph Lemmon, Jasper Place; Ben Hager, Clem Dennington, Westmount; Charlie Croft, B. W. Waller, Riverdale.

Many other prominent sportsmen interested in Community League activities phoned in expressing their interest in the sport and assuring a large entry list from their respective districts.

It is expected that individual skating meets will be held at all the community rinks. If necessary, semi-finals will be run off at the East End, South Side and West End. The final events will be held on Wednesday, February 8, weather permitting.

Mr. E. E. Holub, president of the Edmonton speed skaters' association and Roy Foster, prominent amateur official have offered to coach any of the individual league skaters, setting aside periods for the skaters.

The events will include every distance in the speed skating rules.

Superiors Beat Swiss Team, 5-2

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 7.—The Davos hockey team gave the visiting Edmonton Superiors from Canada a great fight Friday before they were overcome in the last period and lost 5-2.

The Swiss players, led by Torriani and Cattina played brilliantly but the greater experience of the Canadian team won out in the end.

GOLDY GIVES O'S EDGE ON WINDSOR SIX

Edmonton Products Goal Proves Winner For Detroit

WINDSOR, Jan. 7.—Carson Cooper's Detroit Olympics survived a blood-and-thunder contest with Windsor Bulldogs here last night to register a 3-2 victory that ushered them into fourth place in the International Hockey League one point ahead of the Bulldogs.

Olympics played steadier hockey offensively and defensively to register their second win in as many visits to the border cities this season.

REFEREE HURT

The crowd offered an unruly demenstration in the third period as it objected to the work of referee Jerry Laflamme. The climax came when a spectator heaved a small stone at Laflamme, hitting the arbiter on the top of the head and cutting a deep gash.

Olympics went into the lead with the only goal of the first period and were never headed. Newman sank a rebound of Ralph Taylor's shot within two minutes of the start of play.

Referee—Jerry LaFlamme.

CAPITALS HERE TONIGHT AFTER DRAW IN SOUTH

Kenny McKenzie and his swanky Caps from Regina rolled into town early this morning and tonight at 8.30 sharp at the Arena, they battle Duke Keat's Eskimos, in the first of a series of three games that are crowded into the narrow space of four days. On Monday the blubber-eaters invade Calgary, lair of the leading Tigers, then back home Tuesday night against the snarling Bengals.

BIG ORDER

The above program is a large order but in the camp of the Northerners there is a [illegible] determination on the part of every man to fight to the bitter end. Tonight marks their first milestone on the journey that will lead them from the gloomy depths of the cellar and if they succeed, Edmonton will be up in the race not so far from the flying Tigers. The lamented Knute Rockne, leader of football and men, once said, "When you go on the field, don't go out to die gamely, go out fighting to live." That sentiment can readily explain the feeling of our Esks as they drop over the boards into the battle pit tonight.

KEATS TALKS

The Duke of Keats is on the war-path. He wants to give Edmonton a winner. The fans have supported him nobly and the Duke appreciates it fully. Last night he exploded a bomb among his associates, stating that he is going to act and act fast. "If my team fails tonight, I'm swinging the axe again. Right now I am negotiating for three players who are wearing the spangles of a National league club. I'll get them if it is humanly possible," so quoth the skipper of the green and white.

Keats will switch his second forward wall slightly for tonight's game. Ade Johnson will hold down the centre berth with Buster Huffman taking a board patrol and Hoot Gibson on the other side. On the first string, Keats, Scott and Gagne. The rear guard, Ernie Kenny, Ollie Redpath and Earl Robertson. Cameron Smith will be the tenth man, spelling the defense.

PUSIE IS HERE!

In the wildwoods of Habitant Kebec, near old Chicoutimi, a husky, square jawed, progemy of aristocratic settlers, burst upon the sophisticated community some 23 years ago. His name was GENE PUSIE!

Outside the confines of old world Chicoutimi, his arrival caused not even a ripple of public interest. But when he left his native hearth, two months ago and travelled far to Western Canada, to play with the Caps of Regina, his departure was the occasion for protracted lamentations on the part of every hockey loving fan of Lower Canada. For in Kenny McKenzie's gain, they realized they had suffered the loss, the absence of one whom they had admired.

WHAT A MAN

Fans around the Western Canada circuit can fully appreciate the feelings of the Kebeckers, for in Pusie, Titantic Pusie, they possess a man, redolent in color, consummate in ability, who on his every appearance on the ice, packs thrill upon thrill.

Coming not far from Grand Pre, home of Walter Small, famous defenceman of the glamorous old Montreal Wanderers, close by the birthplace of one, the much lamented George Vezina, the Chicoutimi Cucumber, such was the environment of Regina's super showman. He was nurtured on the dashing, inspired French-Canadien type of hockey as exemplified by Jack Laviolette, Didier Pitre, Newsy Lalonde, names that live forever along the hockey horizon. They were the idols of this raven locked giant in his boyhood days. They were the men he sought to follow and which he has as witness his reception by Western Canada followers.

GLAMOROUS GENE

Gene missed his beloved Quebec when he came to the beckoning west. He missed the tang of the maple syrup, rushing from the trees in the forests, the little garcon, with their folk dances. True to his nature, the giant Pusie was a mighty hunter. He stalked the moose along the vast reaches of the rushing Saguenay and the Meramichi. Constant outdoor life gave him a pair of hawk eyes and many were the monarchs of the woods who fell victims to his unerring aim.

Today he lives in new surroundings and his sparkling personality soon accustomed him to his team mates, the whole of Regina and the entire Western circuit.

Some greats of the athletic world shine only on the field of combat but not Pusie. He exudes good fellowship, everywhere he goes. Gene, husky Habitant provides every bit as attractive entertainment in passing merry badinage with friends as he does when roaring down the pond on his bull-like drives.

MAKES FRENDS

Anyone would like this clean living, smiling giant. He makes you like him on sight. Over the breakfast table, gentleman Gene walloped a staggering order of ham and eggs and kept a running fire of conversation in his typical Habitant accent. And up in his hotel room he entertained with French-Canadian songs, sung in a clear rich baritone.

Sammy McAdam, the playmaking expert for McKenzie's squad related a story on Pusie which little Sammy loves to unfold.

ZE FRENCH

During the Great War, when Gene was scampering around the green forests of Chicocoutimi a bare footed youngster of tender years, a traveller happened along one day. Pusie followed the grim struggle overseas in the papers every day. One afternoon the stranger asked the Cap ace what he thought of the battle. The Germans were driving hard at that time. Gene drew up to his full height and answered: "Zey ma [illegible] General Joffre, zee French, nevaire."

And that is typical of Pusie, on the ice. He likes Edmonton and its fans but tonight he will be digging in, fighting for victory.

Barber Poles Secure Two Goal Lead in the First Frame—Tigers Even the Count in Rousing Second Period.

CALGARY, Jan. 7.—Regina Capitals and Calgary Tigers battled to a two-goal draw in a Western Canada Professional Hockey League game here last night to leave the Tigers with their five-point lead over the Reginans intact.

Sheppard picked off the first goal for Regina and McAdam, on a pass from Pusie, notched the second before the end of the first period. McAdam slipped the puck into the Tigers net while he was lying on the ice after a [illegible].

Calgary counted both their goals in the second period, both coming [illegible]. Anderson went down on a lone rush for the first Tiger counter, while Sutherland picked the puck from the face-off and banged home the second.

POOR LITTLE ANNIE-

DOGS RUN AWAY, SOME TIMES- BUT THEY MOST ALWAYS COME BACK-
SANDY DIDN'T RUN AWAY- HE MEETS ME EVERY NIGHT, WHEN I COME HOME FROM THE STORE- MRS. FUTILE SAID HE STARTED OUT, SAME AS USUAL- HE SHOULD HAVE MET ME- BUT HE NEVER GOT TO TH' STORE- HE JUST DIS'PEARED-
I'VE BEEN ALL OVER THIS TOWN A DOZEN TIMES- GEE- I'LL GO GOOFY, IF I DON'T FIND SOME TRACE OF SANDY BEFORE LONG-
THERE GOES OLD PINCHPENNY'S SON, ELMER- GEE, WHAT A MEAN, STUCK-UP GUY HE IS-LEAPIN' LIZARDS! LOOK AT THAT SAP GO 'ROUND THAT CORNER ON TWO WHEELS- S'POSIN' SOMEONE HAD BEEN CROSSIN' JUST THEN-
A BIRD LIKE THAT IS DANGEROUS- GEE- SPOSIN SANDY GOT HIT BY A CAR, WHILE HE WAS COMIN' TO MEET ME-
I'VE BEEN UP AND DOWN THE STREETS, 'TWEEN HOME AND TH' STORE, TWENTY TIMES LOOKIN'- BUT I'LL LOOK AGAIN- HERE, SANDY! HERE, SANDY!
